CUBS SCORE AGAINST THE DOVES

2 DESPERADOES FIRE ON POLICE

Fresh Outbreak of Lawlessness Causes Renewed Activity in Hunt for Bandit Gang—Waltham Police in Gun Battle.

With greater energy than ever, the Boston police are to-day conducting the hunt for Peter Plaude and Peter Jekapson, the two yeggs who are believed to have been the companions of Edmund Gutman in "shooting up" Jamaica Plain last week. This renewed activity followed a revolver duel to-day between Waltham policemen and two men who opened fire when approached by the officers.

Several new clews were unearthed to-day and suspicions persons examined by the police, but nothing tangible developed from any of these.

The police are searching every possible hiding place in or near Boston for these men.

They are also hunting for the young girl, Leontina Maureen, who has been styled the "queen of the yeggs."

Among other clews one gathered from letters received from Minneapolis, at No. 120 Hooker street, Lawrence, the home of a family named Maureen, or Mauren, heads the Boston police to think that Leontina Maureen may have possibly escaped their dragnet and fled to Minneola, where there are several large colonies of Letts.

Clew in the West.

The police of Lawrence learned that strange letters were received by the Maureen family last Monday. They notified the Boston police and an inspector went to Lawrence to investigate.

As a result of that the police of Minneapolis have been asked to scour the community in search of Leontina Maureen.

The police believe also that the two missing yeggs may have escaped to the Western city at the same time, and the police there are also asked to hunt for them.

Men Who Opened Fire.

The men who opened fire on the Waltham police were first seen in the vicinity of the Waltham watch factory. They were walking along the railroad tracks when they were approached by Officers Thomas Dolan and Frank Hall. Without warning they opened fire on the officers, who returned the fire. The men escaped.

Chief Hilliard, of Waltham, notified the Boston police of the shooting, and Inspector Hussey and Detectives Dinneen and Hines went to Waltham to investigate.

Chief Hilliard said to-day that he believed the men were the same who had been hiding in the woods near Waltham for several days.

Officer Walked Away from Bandits.

That Policeman Seymour Butler of Station 13 peered into the barroom of Winterson & McManus while the three desperadoes were shooting right and left, then turned and walked away in the direction of Boylston street while the bandits took the opposite course, was admitted by the officer to-day in the course of the hearing of Guiseppe De Vleo, who was charged with the murder of John Drake.

Several witnesses testified to-day in the Jamaica Plain District Court before Judge John Perrins, one of them John Carty, going so far as to declare that De Vleo was one of the bandits who "shot up" the saloon. Set after Attorney John B. Crowley had finished cross-examining the witnesses for the government, the judge allowed De Vleo to go free.

Hugh McDougall and Butler also faced the court to-day on charges growing out of the reign of terror of the Jamaica Plain yeggs.

Fred B. Patch, a witness, said he was at the bar the night of the shooting. When the three men burst in, firing their revolvers, I ran and called Policeman Butler. I cannot identify any man De Vleo as one of the men. I saw the dead man in the police station Thursday morning. He was the leader of the three who ran into the saloon.

Dingsorf said: "I was in my house nearby when I heard three shots fired. I ran to the saloon. I saw a man riffling the cash register and one standing back in the room with revolver drawn. I think De Vleo was one of the men, but am not positive."

Officer Butler said: "I was standing at the corner of Washington street, Box 23, at School and Washington streets, pulling a duty call at 10:55. I heard five shots fired and started in the direction the sound came. As I ran I heard five or seven more shots.

"As the saloon I threw open the door and a man fired a shot at me. The bullet whistled by my head. I fell back about twenty feet, pulled my revolver and fired as the three men ran out of the saloon. A citizen called: 'Those are not the men you want; they went down Washington street.'

"I jumped on a car, told the motorman to hurry and rode to Green street, where I asked a man if he had seen three men running. He had not and I got the same car and came back to the saloon, where I got a description of the bandits.

"I saw the face of but one of the men. De Vleo looks like the man who fired at me."

Cross-examined by Attorney Crowley, Butler said:

"I did not see Mr. Dingorf as witness there. He was mistaken in saying I looked in the saloon and went back to Boylston street. I did not see him there at all."

Went in Opposite Direction.

"You saw the three men come out of the saloon and the direction they took?" asked Mr Crowley.

"I did," said Butler.

"Then you took a car in the opposite direction from which the men went?" he was asked. "I did take a car in the opposite direction after they ran from the saloon, was the policeman's answer.

Butler's words were drowned in pops of laughter which the court did not try to suppress.

"I think that's the man right over there," said John Carty, an employee of the firm of Winterson & McManus, earlier in the hearing, and he pointed out De Vleo as he stood by Constable and another prisoner. McDougall was in court, but he sat among the spectators, as he had secured bail.

Three times Carty declared that De Vleo had been one of the men who shot up the saloon resulting in the killing of John Drake. Drake's widow was called to testify, but she was too weak and labored under too much emotion. She was excused.

Rocco Benta testified that he had purchased a ticket to New York for DeVleo and corroborated the latter's statement that he had spent Tuesday night in a house at Revere Beach.

Officer Dan Buckley, who testified to seeing two men in the archway, could not identify either of the men in custody.

Mrs. Ernestine Ellwood of No. 341 Bidwell street, Marblehead, testified that she saw De Vleo on the "Shore drive" of Marblehead Neck with others, and she picked out the man who had been, and she picked out Speidaire for De Vleo.

Carmaine Anchella, the shoe man, testified that De Vleo was in his place Tuesday night from 8:30 to 10:30 p. m.

Edward G. Lasday, conductor of a street car running out of Malden, testified that De Vleo rode on his car on the night of the hold-up. The car left Malden at 11:05 p. m. The hold-up occurred earlier.

MORTON ASKS PROBE IN LAND TRANSACTIONS

Declares He Has Done Nothing to Warrant Removal as Cemetery Head.

Following the resignation from office of Chairman William J. Fallon of the Board of Cemetery Trustees and the suspension by Mayor Hibbard of Superintendent James H. Morton of Mount Hope Cemetery because of the disclosures by the Finance Commission that Fallon and Morton had made "a secret profit" of more than $9,000 in a land sale to the city, the remaining members of the Board of Cemetery Trustees to-day began an investigation into the land sales.

Upon the result of this investigation depends the reinstatement of Superintendent Morton. The Finance Commission recommended the dismissal of both Fallon and Morton and the filing of a suit to recover the "secret profit." Morton, however, declares that he has done nothing to cause his removal, and has asked the Mayor to investigate some of the unpublished testimony at the hearing before the Finance Commission.

Cemetery Trustees Arteaux, Hersey and Phipps and Corporation Counsel Babson to-day conferred with Mayor Hibbard concerning the cemetery land takings. Babson will immediately file a civil suit to recover. The trustees concurred with the Mayor in the suspension of Superintendent Morton. Superintendent Sullivan of the public grounds department will head the cemetery department until the trustees have finished their investigation into the land takings.

Mayor Hibbard declared to-day that he had not yet decided on Fallon's successor on the Board of Cemetery Trustees. The Board of Aldermen must confirm the appointment.

SOUTH END GROUNDS, BOSTON, July 29.—It was no wonder the Hub fans turned out at the diamond matinee with the Chicago Cubs, the world's champions being the attraction, and they remembered what the Bores did to the celebrated ball team in the Windy City, and there were anticipations of more performances of the same kind on this occasion.

The Cubs looked at their situation more seriously than when they were sailing along at the top of the league, and it was with more grimness that they entered the and the ordeal. Mordecai Brown, and fray, for every game at this stage meant both tough propositions to get away with.

Manager Selee was anxious to win the final game, thereby making a good start against the Western clubs. He decided to send the veteran Twitter and great pitcher in the business to the rubber this afternoon.

The Boston ...ith Young behind them were as confident as ever could be of outlasting the Cubs, who seems to have lost their batting eye.

After leaving this city, the Bostons will journey to Brooklyn, where they will meet the champions of the American League to-morrow.

The Cubs felt the importance of their standing, and gave every evidence of doing some terrific execution on the Bores to even up for those otherwise unpleasant in the last series, and it needed no magnifying glass to discover that they were out for gore from the ring of the bell.

When the team left the Lakeside town it was with the intention of getting back in first pay before the Eastern trip was completed and Captain Chance was the chief instigator of the plot to overthrow every team that obstructed their journey on the road to the top pinnacle.

Joe Kelley hit a fine battle front to present with a couple of his veteran outfielders in Flaherty and Dorner awaiting the call to spot the wins except the Cubs secured on their own field and it was the object of the home to begin the tripping on the first appearance.

The series with the Reds found the Doves up to the proper pitch to meet such a fast fighting gang as the Cubs, for the more over the company the better the regulars used to entertain Threepenny.

The Cubs had a couple of ground holders to regret in the Southpaw Flaherty and Bowerman, who were there are several large colonies of Letts.

Clew in the West.

The police of Lawrence learned that strange letters were received by the Plaude and Jekapson.

CLEVELAND, July 29.—This was the runaway day for the Red Sox here, and they entered into the battle as though their lives depended on the result of it.

When they started play the series stood 2 to 1 in favor of the Boomerangers, but with Cy Young on the mound they felt confident that they could get even with the Clevelands for their defeat of yesterday.

Young was the opening game of the series here just this day, when he was pitted against Paulsberg, the ex-Senator, and as Manager Mckee was anxious to win the final game, they making a good start against the Western clubs. He decided to send the veteran Twitter and great pitcher in the business to the rubber this afternoon.

HALSWELL CAN'T COMPETE HERE

NEWARK, N. J., July 29.—Lieutenant Halswell of England, who was asked to meet J. C. Carpenter here in a 400-metre running event, cabled to-day his inability to accept. One of the features of the Olympic games was the winning of the 400-metre running desh by Carpenter, who was disqualified because it was charged he had "bumped" Halswell.

The manager of the Knights of Columbus games, which are to be held here next month, thought to add a new drawing card in the Halswell-Carpenter race, and the regrets of the Englishmen put an end to the negotiations.

FOUR BATTLESHIPS AND THREE CRUISERS TO BRING CASTRO TO TERMS.

Special Cable to Hearst News Service.

THE HAGUE, July 29.—The battleships Heemskerck, Piet Hein and Evertsen and the cruisers Holland, Utrecht and Friesland have been ordered by the Netherlands Government to assemble in the West Indies.

The marine ministry has also notified the East Indian squadron commander that he may be ordered to assemble his fleet off the coast of Venezuela pending further orders.

The Government is negotiating the purchase of a number of small fast steamships in the event of a blockade of the Venezuelan ports.

The trouble between Holland and President Castro of Venezuela, goes back just three months ago, when the bubonic plague broke out in one of the Venezuelan ports Holland owns the island of Curacoa, off Venezuela, and promptly the authorities on the island put up the bars and refused to admit any shipping from Venezuela.

President Castro reinstated by shutting the ports of Venezuela to shipments of goods to and from the Dutch island. Holland protested, with the result that on June 20, President Castro wrote a letter of defiance to Holland, and expelled also Mr. Jan de Reus, Holland's minister to Venezuela.

On the Dutch island of Curacoa great demonstrations are being made against Venezuela. President Castro's consul, one Lopez, having been mobbed.

All diplomatic relations between President Castro and France, Colombia, the United States, Great Britain as well as Holland have now been broken off.

NEW HAMPSHIRE MEN WIN BANCROFT TROPHY

WAKEFIELD, July 29.—The second day of the New England Military Association shooting tourney was a triumph for the New Hampshire marksmen, as the militia from that State secured the Bancroft trophy, open to regimental teams of New England. This prize, presented by Major-General W. A. Bancroft, was much sought after, and the Granite State men were happy and proud over the victory.

The individual high score man was Musician George W. Chesley, of Co. D, Second Regiment, who won the Lawrence watch with 174 points out of a possible 200, and the Floyd trophy, with a perfect score of 50.

The results of the company shoot at 200 yards, rapid fire, and 600 yards, slow fire, were as follows:

PLATFORM BOLDLY STRIKES AT EVILS IN NATION'S LIFE

VITAL ISSUES IN CAMPAIGN TREATED WITHOUT EVASION IN RESOLUTIONS.

CHICAGO, July 29.—Following is platform adopted by the National Convention of the Independence Party this afternoon:

WE, independent American citizens, representing the Independence party in forty-four States and two Territories, have met in national convention to nominate, absolutely independent of all other political parties, candidates for President and Vice-President of the United States.

Our action is based upon a determination to wrest the conduct of public affairs from the hands of selfish interests, political tricksters and corrupt bosses, and make the government as the founders intended, an agency for the common good.

Dishonest Practices.

At a period of unexampled national prosperity and promise, a staggering blow was dealt to legitimate business by the unmolested practice of stock watering and dishonest financiering. Multitudes of deceived investors, thousands of honest business men and an army of idle workingmen are paying the penalty. Year by year, fostered by wasteful and reckless governmental extravagance, by the manipulation of trusts and by a privilege creating tariff, the cost of living mounts higher and higher. Day by day the control of the government drifts further away from the people and more firmly into the grip of machine politicians and party bosses.

The Republican and Democratic parties are not only responsible for these conditions but are committed to their indefinite continuance.

Prodigal of promises, they are so barren of performance that to a new party of independent voters the country must look for the establishment of a new policy and a return to genuine popular government. Our object is not to introduce violent innovations or startling new theories. We are of the Independence Party look back as Lincoln did, to the Declaration of Independence as the fountain head of all political inspiration. It is not our purpose to attempt to revolutionize the American system of government, but to restore the action of the government in the principle of Washington and Jefferson and Lincoln.

Conserve Privileges.

It is not our purpose either to effect a radical change in the American system of government, but to conserve for the citizens of the United States their privileges and liberties, won for them by the founders of this government, and to perpetuate the principles and policies upon which the nation's greatness has been built.

The Independence Party is, therefore, a conservative force in American politics, devoted to the preservation of American liberty and independence, to honesty in elections, to opportunity in business and to equality before the law.

Those who believe in the Independence party and work with it are convinced that a genuine democracy should exist; that a true republican form of government should continue, that the power of government should rest with the majority, of the people and that the government should be conducted for the benefit of the whole nationwide rather than for the special advantages of any particular class.

Direct Nominations Necessary to End Corrupt Boss Rule

As of first importance, in order to restore the power of government to the people, be made their will supreme in the primaries, in the elections and in the control of public officials after they have been elected, we declare for direct nominations, the initiative and referendum and the right to recall.

It is idle to cry out against the evil of bossism, while we perpetuate a system under which it is possible. The office of the individual boss is of little importance. The people in their politics must establish a system which will prevent not only an objectionable boss, but the system of bossism.

Representative government is made a mockery by the system of modern party convention, dominated by bosses and controlled by cliques. We demand that the natural remedy of direct nominations, by which the people not only elect, but which is far more important, select their representatives.

Recall of Officials.

We believe in the principles of initiative and referendum. We particularly demand that no franchise grant shall go into operation until terms and conditions have been approved by popular vote in the locality interested.

We demand for the people the right to recall public officials in the public service, the power to take from office any slides in the people, and in them also should reside the power to prevent the removal from office any official who demonstrating his unfitness or betrayal of the public trust.

Of next importance in destroying the power of selfish special interests and the corrupt political bosses is the power of control to wrest from their hands their main weapon, the corruption fund. We demand severe and effective legislation against the use of corporate funds at elections and advocate prohibiting the use of any money at elections except for meetings, literature and the necessary traveling expenses of candidates.

Bidding for votes the Republican and Democratic candidates are making an outcry about publicity of contributions, although both the Republican and Democratic parties have for years consistently blocked every effort to pass a corrupt practices act. Publicity of contributions is desirable and should be required, but the main matter of importance is the use to which contributions are put.

Economical Administration.

We believe that the dishonest use of money in the past, whether contributed by individuals or by corporations, has been chiefly responsible for the open graft which has undermined our system of popular government.

We demand honest conduct of public offices and business-like, economical administration of public affairs, and we condemn the gross extravagance of federal administration and its appalling annual increase in appropriations. Unnecessary appropriations means unnecessary taxation, unnecessary taxes, whether direct or indirect, are paid by the people, and add to the ever-increasing cost of living.

We condemn the policy of over-capitalization.

Modern industrial conditions make the corporation and stock company a necessity, but over-capitalization by corporations is as harmful and criminal as is personal dishonesty in any individual.

Compelling the payment of dividends upon great sums that have never been invested, upon masses of watered stock not justified by the property, over-capitalization prevents the better wages, the better public service and the lower cost that should result from American inventive genius and that wide prosperity which is replacing costly individual competition.

Republican and Democratic Labor Planks Buncombe

The collapse of dishonestly inflated enterprises robs investors, closes banks, destroys confidence and engenders panics. The Independence Party advocates as a primary necessity for sounder business conditions and improved public service the enactment of legislation by National authority to prevent watering of stocks, dishonest issues of bonds and other forms of corporate frauds.

We denounce the so-called labor planks of the Republican and Democratic platforms as political buncombe and contemptible cowardice unworthy of national parties claiming to be sincere and honest.

The Republican declaration that "no injunction or temporary restraining order should be issued without notice to the party where irreparable injury would result from delay," is nearly worthless, for a showing of an irreparable injury can always be made in ex parte affidavits.

The Democratic declaration that "injunctions should cease to issue in any case in which injunctions should not issue if no industrial dispute were involved" is meaningless and worthless.

Such indirect and meaningless declarations place a low estimate upon the intelligence of the average American voter and can exhibit either ignorance of or indifference to the real interests of labor.

Injunction Law.

The Independence Party condemns the arbitrary use of the writ of injunction and contempt proceedings as a violation of the fundamental American right of trial by jury.

Since the foundation of our government down to 1872 the Federal judiciary act prohibited the issue of an injunction without reasonable notice until after a hearing. We assert that all men, whether engaging out of a dispute between employers and employes concerning terms or conditions of employment, or otherwise, should issue until after a trial upon the merits, that such trial should be by a jury before a jury, and that in no case of alleged contempt should any person be imprisoned therefor without a trial by jury.

The Independence party believes that the distribution of wealth is as important as the production. We favor the co-operation of these organizations among farmers and laborers which will give them a greater share in the distribution of wealth through good wages for workers and good prices for farmers, and which protect the employer and the consumer against the inequality of price for labor and for product.

We advocate the eight-hour day, first by application to all government employes and demand the enactment of laws requiring that all work done for the government, whether Federal or State, and whether by contractors or subcontractors, shall be done on an eight-hour basis.

Condemnation of Blacklist.

We favor the enactment of a law condemning as illegal any combination or conspiracy to blacklist employes.

We demand protection for workmen through the adoption of safe and standard safety appliances and provisions for the safety of employes in the operation of factories, railroads, mills and mines and all industrial establishments.

We advocate State and Federal inspection of factories in several cities and demand the enactment of laws requiring that all work done for the government, whether Federal or State, and whether by contractors or subcontractors, shall be done on an eight-hour basis.

Condemnation of Blacklist.

We favor the enactment of a law condemning as illegal any conspiracy to blacklist employes.

We demand protection for workmen through the adoption of safe and standard safety appliances and provisions for the safety of employes in the operation of factories, railroads, mills and mines and all industrial establishments.

We advocate State and Federal inspection of factories in several cities and demand the enactment of laws requiring that all work done for the government, whether Federal or State, and whether by contractors or subcontractors, shall be done on an eight-hour basis.

Public Ownership of Telegraphs and Railroads Is Urged

We advocate the extension of the principle of public ownership for public utilities, including railroads, as rapidly as municipal, State or national government shall demonstrate ability to conduct public utilities for the public benefit. We favor specifically government ownership of the telegraph companies, such as prevails in every other civilized country in the world, and demand that the government purchase and operate the telegraphs in connection with the postal service.

The parcels post system should be speedily and widely extended, and government ownership of telegraphs established where the people's deposits will be used, the money to be loaned to the people in the locality of the several banks and at rates of interest to be fixed by the government.

We favor the immediate development of a national system of good roads connecting all States and nations and to States in the construction and maintenance of post roads.

We favor a review of the Supreme Court decisions declaring unconstitutional the Sherman anti-trust law and the recent arbitrary rulings of the Postoffice department.

We advocate such legislation, both State and national, as will prevent the market quotations and prohibit the fictitious selling of farm products for future delivery.

For Public Health.

We favor the creation of a department of public health, to be presided over by a member of the medical profession, this department to exercise such authority over matters of public health, hygiene and sanitation as may be delegated to it by the jurisdiction of the national government and does not interfere with the right of States or municipalities.

We oppose Asiatic immigration which does not assimilate with our population, creates race issues and un-American conditions and which reduces wages and tends to lower the high standard of living and the high standard of morality of the American civilization established.

We demand the passage of an exclusion act which shall protect American workingmen from competition with Asiatic cheap labor and which shall prevent the contamination of American civilization from the contamination of Asiatic conditions.

Navy to Protect Both Coasts.

The Independence party declares for peace and against aggression, and will promote the movement for the settlement of international disputes by arbitration.

We believe, however, that a small navy is poor economy, and that a strong navy is the best protection in time of war and the best preventive of war.

We therefore favor the speedy building of a navy sufficiently strong to protect at the same time both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts of the United States.

We favor the development of the merchant marine by the building and operating of such lines of ships as may be necessary by the government.

We favor the adoption by both the Democratic and Republican platforms of the demand of the Independence party for improved national waterways and the Mississippi inland deep waterways project, to complete a ship canal from the gulf to the great lakes. We favor the extension of this project to the tributaries of the Mississippi, by means of which thirty States will be served and 20,000 miles added to the coast line of the United States.

Reclaim Arid Lands.

The reclamation of arid lands should be continued, and the irrigation commission now contemplated by the government extended and steps taken for the conservation of the country's natural resources, which should be under the control of the national government.

We favor the adoption of the administration of our forest preserves must be corrected and provision should be made for free grazing from public lands outside of forest or other reservation. In behalf of the people residing in large portions of our Western States we protest vigorously against the policy of the federal government in selling the exclusive use of water and electric powers derived from public works to private corporations, thus creating a monopoly and subjecting citizens to tribute. These sections ask no special favors or privileges, only simply that such beneficent channels for corporate greed be closed against them, and we demand that none exclusive contracts be made.

American citizens abroad, whether native born or naturalized, and of whatever race or creed, must be secured in the enforcement of all rights and privileges under our treaties, and wherever such rights are withheld by any country on the ground of race or religious faith steps should be taken to secure the removal of such unjust discrimination.

Election of United States Senators.

We advocate the popular election of United States Senators and of judges, both State and Federal, and favor a graduated income tax and any constitutional amendments necessary to these ends.

Equality of opportunity, the largest measure of individual liberty consistent with equal rights, the conservation of the people's interest and the restoration of government by the majority, exercising for their families, and control over those are the purposes to which the Independence party is pledged, and we invite the co-operation of all patriotic and citizens, regardless of party, who are in sympathy with these principles and in favor of their practical enforcement.

LABOR MEN FORM LEAGUE TO GIVE NEW PARTY AID

CHICAGO, July 28.—Delighted by the platform adopted this afternoon, 103 representatives of organized labor left the convention hall for a conference. They formed the Independence League of Workingmen, and plan to help the new party in every possible way.

Every man who attended the meeting pledged himself to return to his home town and organize craft clubs among their own and affiliated organizations.

Much bitterness was shown against Samuel Gompers, for trying to deliver the labor vote wholesale to Bryan. From a dozen different sections came positive declarations that Gompers nor any one else could deliver the labor vote.

On the motion of P. J. Cantwell of Providence, R. I., and on the second of J. J. Dunn, the following resolution was passed:

"Resolved, That we, the members of organized labor, in attendance at the first national convention of the Independence party, pledge to the officers of the Independence Party a fair and equitable exposition of the rights and demands of the working men of the country; and be it

"Resolved, That our chairman report our action at the convention this day, and that we call on the workingmen of the country to come to the support of a party which unequivocally declares for the legitimate aims of labor."

TORRENTS OF RAIN RUINOUS TO CROPS

ROCHESTER, N. Y. July 29.—Continued heavy rains throughout Western New York have done great damage to hay and wheat crops. The uncured wheat is going to grow in the shock in the warm weather, and hay has been made rusty.

Many identified with the shoe and leather trade, both retail and wholesale, who know shoe values, are, during the great clearance sale now going on at 25 Temple Place, purchasing for their families, and enjoying their friends to purchase, a year's supply of Sorosis Shoes at the bargain price of two ninety-eight, which is less than the cost of leather.

Provided you do not happen to need shoes yourself, you can do no greater favor to your relatives and friends than to mention this sale to them.—Adv.

HISGEN AND GRAVES NEW PARTY'S TICKET

INDEPENDENCE CONVENTION NOMINATES MASSACHUSETTS MAN ON THIRD BALLOT.

BY WILLIAM HOSTER.

CHICAGO, July 29.—Thomas L. Hisgen of Massachusetts and John Temple Graves of Georgia were nominated for President and Vice-President by the Independence party in Orchestra Hall shortly before 1 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Hisgen's nomination came on the third ballot. The vote was: Hisgen, 831; Graves, 77; Heard, 38; Hearst, 2. On motion of Illinois Mr. Hisgen's nomination was made unanimous.

There was little doubt that Mr. Hisgen would be nominated from the time the first ballot was taken, in that ballot he received 236 votes, under the two-thirds rule 619 votes are necessary. On the second ballot New York started the break to Hisgen, the 68 votes given to Reuben Holde Lyon being tendered to the Massachusetts man.

The vote for President on the first ballot resulted: Hisgen, 236; Graves, 213; Hoskard, 209; Lyon, 71; Hearst, 49. On the second ballot flags received 598 votes; Graves dropped to 91 and Howard to 109. Hearst held to 49, and Lyon was eliminated.

When the third ballot started State after State changed its vote to Hisgen.

Enthusiasm for Hisgen.

When his nomination was assured the Massachusetts delegation started to cheer. Michigan asked permission to change her vote to Hisgen. Florida, Missouri, Georgia and North Carolina quickly followed. Alabama swung into line, and State after State that had supported favorite sons climbed into the band wagon of the Bay State leader.

The motion to make the nomination unanimous came from Georgia and was adopted with a shout that shook the building. Instantly a delegate from Massachusetts seized the banner of the State and, followed by other members of the delegation, started a parade around the hall. State after State fell into line and almost until every delegate was on his feet, marching and cheering.

When order had been partly restored a committee consisting of Jimpie Crawford of Georgia, Wilford W. Howard of Alabama and Reuben R. Lyon of New York was appointed to notify Mr. Hisgen of his nomination and escort him to the platform.

Graves for Vice-President.

Pending the return of the committee, Clarence J. Shearn of New York was recognized by the chair and placed John Temple Graves in nomination for the Vice-Presidency.

In his speech Mr. Shearn said in part:

"I have a most pleasant duty to perform. We met to-day to complete the nomination we have so made—a man who can carry our principles to all parts of the country. I have in mind such a man.

"Men may be won of his loyalty, his fealty and his devotion to the Independence Party. I have but to tell you the unanimous call of this convention to join with 'Honest John' Hisgen in the ticket with John Temple Graves."

Governor Hoch of Mr. Graves' name was greeted with a yell of approval.

Mr. Shearn's speech finished Charles E. S. Neal of Indiana in nomination, John Randolph Haynes of California was placed in nomination by John Kelly of Connecticut, Dr. Howard of Georgia seconded Dr. Howard Taylor of Illinois. Dr. Taylor withdrew Graves' name and put Hisgen's in nomination as Charters and moved to suspend the rules and make Graves' nomination unanimous. This was done and the convention adjourned for one day.

A Dramatic Session.

William Jennings Bryan's name was drowned in a torrent of hisses at the dramatic last session of the convention and John I. Sheppard of Kansas, who attempted to put Bryan's name in nomination, had to be given the protection of the police force of Chicago. Sheppard was going to save him from the infuriated delegates. Sheppard was escorted from the hall by a detail of sergeants-at-arms, while a crowd of delegates surged behind, denouncing him as a traitor. Sheppard was the only Bryan man in the convention. He was placed in a delegation from his State, who refused to sit with him when they learned of his purpose to nominate Bryan. After he had been ruled from the floor on a point of order Judge Waterbury of Kansas took the platform and, declaring himself as a Bryan man, informed the convention, amid tremendous cheering, that Sheppard was probably the only man in the State who favored Bryan.

Sheppard Given a Chance.

When Sheppard began verging toward Bryan's name, a storm of protest arose through the hall. Walsh rapped vigorously for order, but the tumult was increased. Sheppard protested, and Mitchell of Colorado arose and faced his audience defiantly.

Senator Williams of California rushed down to the foot of the platform, loudly proclaiming a point of order.

"If the gentleman insists, I shall have to recognize him," said the chair.

"I simply desire to put this convention straight," shouted the Californian. "Don't make a fool of yourself by pleasing a set of the gentleman who has the platform, and wherever such rights are withheld by any country on the ground of race or religious faith steps should be taken to secure the removal of such unjust discrimination.

246 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, MASS.

Several hundred delegates were on their feet shaking their fists and shrieking, denouncing Sheppard, demanding that he retire, asserting their purpose to have a straight ticket. The sergeant-at-arms were grappling with the more furious of the delegates. In the galleries there were menacing moves on every side.

It was the moment toward which the Bryanites had been looking. Here was the crisis—the psychological moment—at which the convention of the Independence Party was to be smashed for the Nebraskan.

An angry roar—a deep, penetrating burst of resentment—went from the throats of the thousands, and one man who favored Bryan in all the convention stood facing an infuriated convention that had placed itself clearly on record in rules and resolutions that Sheppard himself had voted for.

In the extremity of the situation, wise counsels prevailed. A cordon of sergeants-at-arms formed about the stairway leading to the platform. Chairman Walsh, pounding on the table with his gavel, stood directly beside the Kansan, with a big deputy sergeant-at-arms on the other side and the minister in the rear.

Great Crowds Denounces Him.

Walsh never faltered. He pounded until the sergeant-at-arms had restored order. Then he calmly took up the point of order, and going over the entire records of the party carefully down to the adoption of the resolutions in the afternoon, he ruled Sheppard out of order.

That was the signal for the final demonstration, and the period of the Kansan man's greater peril. With sergeants-at-arms all about him, he was escorted to the floor and down the centre aisle, the delegates crowding after him, shaking their fists.

Shearn, Palliser, Judge Palmieri and other Independence Party leaders threw themselves between the Bryan man and the angered delegates. They begged and pleaded for order to be called. And all the while Sheppard was being hurried toward the door.

He was white and trembling. Bryan's agent looked up with gratitude as the victim of the plot that miscarried disappointed out of the hall.

Kansas Repudiates Sheppard.

Tumult ensued again. Cheer after cheer was given for the new party and a straight ticket, and presently Judge Waterbury, head of the Kansas section, rushed to the platform and for his State repudiated Sheppard and of the State Bryan men for the Independence Party. Another demonstration followed.

The work of nominating then went forward successfully.

NEW SKIN REMEDY STOPS ITCHING

Skin Troubles Aggravated by Hot Weather Quickly Cured.

When it is known that poslam, the new skin remedy, will stop the torturing itching attending eczema at the first application and bring immediate relief and comfort to sufferers from all skin troubles which are aggravated by hot weather, its merit will be instantly appreciated. On the first application of the soothing infants, poslam may be used with soothing and beneficial effects. It is applied externally, and its remarkable healing powers begin their work at once.

All skin diseases, including eczema, acne, herpes, rash, tetter, etc., yield readily to its remarkable curative properties. Occasional applications of poslam, in small quantities, will quickly banish pimples, blives, blackheads, blotches, and will relieve and cure lichina, scaly eruptions, humors, etc. A special 50-cent package has been adopted for those who use poslam for these minor troubles. This, as well as the regular two-dollar jar, is on sale at Houghton & Dutton's, Riker-Jaynes and other leading drug stores in Boston.

An experimental supply of poslam may be obtained free of charge, by writing to the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West Twenty-fifth Street, New York City.

ITCHING ECZEMA FIFTY-FIVE YEARS

Suffered Torments from Birth — Boils Formed as Big as Walnuts — In Frightful Condition and Could Hardly Work — Tried All Kinds of Remedies to No Avail — At Last

WHOLLY CURED IN 8 MONTHS BY CUTICURA

"I had an itching, tormenting eczema ever since I came into the world, and I am now a man fifty-five years old. I tried all kinds of medicines I heard of, but found no relief. My skin truly in a frightful condition. At last my blood got so bad that I broke out all over with red and white boils, which kept growing until they were as big as walnuts, having great pain and misery. I thought they would take the skin off my body. I was as a living corpse, being as well as I could. I was so run down that I could hardly do my work. Mr. Nelson R. Burnett recommended the use of Cuticura Remedies, telling me he was cured by them. I procured and, in time, cure me. I used the Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent Pills for about eight months, and I can truthfully say I am cured. I cordially recommend Cuticura Remedies to all who are afflicted the same as I was, believing that, if they will use the above according to directions, they will find them all they are represented to be. Any one doubting the truth of the above can write to Mr. Burnett, who will observe a vow of secrecy for me.

HEARST NAMED AS NEW PARTY CHAIRMAN

WALSH, NEAL AND HOWARD TO ASSIST IN MANAGEMENT OF CAMPAIGN.

CHICAGO, July 29.—The first session of the new national committee of the Independence party at the Auditorium Hotel to-day selected William Randolph Hearst as its national chairman to handle the campaign between now and November 4.

The second important action was the selection of Charles A. Walsh of Iowa as national secretary and C. S. F. Neal of Indiana and M. W. Howard of Alabama as vice-national chairmen.

BONAPARTE TO AGAIN PROSECUTE OIL TRUST

DECISION REACHED TO-DAY AFTER CONFERENCE ON REVERSAL OF BIG FINE.

Special to the Boston American.

LENOX, July 29.—At a conference of government attorneys, with Attorney-General Bonaparte here today it was agreed to retry the case of the government vs. the Standard Oil Company in the matter of alleged rebates by the Chicago & Alton railway, according to report given out after the conference. An official statement will be made later this afternoon by Attorney-General Bonaparte.

This is the famous case wherein the Standard was fined $29,000,000 by Judge K. M. Landis of the Federal Circuit Court, this finding being upset by a decision handed down from the Court of Appeals.

Frank B. Kellogg, the special prosecutor appointed by President Roosevelt to prosecute the Standard Oil case, arrived here today and immediately went into conference with Attorney-General Bonaparte. At the conference also were Solicitor-General of the United States Henry M. Hoyt, United States District Attorney Edwin W. Sims of Chicago and his assistant, James Wilkinson.

The conference lasted from 9 to 1. No official statement was made at adjournment because the attorney-general had a statement to give out later. But one of the men at the conference said unofficially that the agreement to reprosecute the case was attained.

Independence Party's First Standard Bearer, His Wife and Three Children

How Candidate for President Beat Oil Trust in Long Fight.

Thomas Louis Hisgen of West Springfield, in Hampden County, whom the Independence party named at Chicago for the presidency of the United States, is a native of Petersburg, a Pike County town, in the southwestern corner of Illinois, less than twenty miles from the Wabash river and the Illinois line. Mr. Hisgen will be fifty years old on the twenty-sixth day of next November. He is 8 year younger than William Howard Taft, the Republican nominee, and less than a year and a half older than William Jennings Bryan.

Hisgen came from the people as surely as Abraham Lincoln did. His early life was one of privation. He had little "schooling." For nearly twenty years he has had to fight a relentless battle with the greatest and most unscrupulous combination that the world of commerce has known—the Standard Oil Company. Standard Oil drove Tom Hisgen into politics to stay. It compelled him to go before the Massachusetts Legislature and the Senate of Massachusetts send him to the people.

In 1907 Mr. Hisgen was the candidate for State Auditor of the Independence League and the Democratic organization. He polled 149,583 votes.

When He Gave the Politicians a Jolt.

Last year Mr. Hisgen was the Independence party's candidate for Governor of Massachusetts. He made one of the most picturesque campaigns in the history of Bay State politics. Practical politicians tried to look upon him as one sent by accident or less of a joke. Hisgen gave them a jolt by polling 73,000 votes, while Henry M. Whitney, under the Democratic label, polled but 20,000. Mr. Whitney is a brother of the late William C. Whitney of New York. In some of the cities, as in New Bedford, Lawrence, Lynn and Somerville, Hisgen ran ahead of the Democratic nominee was pitiable.

The Hisgen boys own can't speak of one of them without mentioning the brothers' ante-German-Irish. Their father, William Ludwig Hisgen, came from Germany. His wife was one of the McNallys of Waterford, in the County Cork. Like Tom Harrigan of the song, Hisgen is "proud to all the Irish blood" that's in him. He was in it has counted in the battle with Standard Oil. Also the surnames.

William Ludwig Hisgen spent a good deal of his time on the old grocery which he sold everybody, was going to be the last thing of its kind in the world that the older Hisgen ran a general store out in Illinois. He didn't call it a "Wall Street" office as a business man, and when Tom, one of a family of seven children, was a lad of sixteen, the family came East to a farm near Albany, N. Y. The old Dutch town, which is something of a chemist, kept pegging away at the patent axle grease. It was some time before he could get the Standard to stock in it. He had to show them.

The Hisgen Brothers Pool Their Savings.

When Tom was big enough he got a job in a woolen clothing mill near Albany, and he not only stuck to it until he was prepared to do something else on his account, but, one after another, he got each of his three brothers into the same store. They were Gustavus and Frank and George. The first named has been dead for a number of years.

All of them and the one ambition that having tested the axle grease, they sealed their earthly belongings one day, loaded their $500 motor truck and quit the clothing store.

That was in 1890, when Tom, the eldest, was thirty-one, and in their very first attempt to manufacture the "Four Brothers' Axle Grease," as they decided to call it, they got into a fight with the world that sent young men of less robust material straight back to the farm. But the Hisgen plant burned down, leaving them penniless, but not discouraged. One of the boys pooled their earthly belongings one day, loaded their $500 motor truck and quit the clothing store.

But the Hisgen plant burned down, leaving them penniless, but not discouraged. One of the boys pooled their earthly belongings one day, loaded their $500 motor truck and quit the clothing store.

Then came a veritable scarf pin. Tom gave surrendered a valuable diamond ring which up his violin, the others a pawnbroker gave over their bad, and when Tom, the eldest, was thirty-one, and in their very first attempt to manufacture the "Four Brothers' Axle Grease," as they decided to call it, they got into a fight with the world that sent young men of less robust material straight back to the farm. But the Hisgen plant burned down, leaving them penniless, but not discouraged. One of the boys pooled their earthly belongings one day, loaded their $500 motor truck and quit the clothing store.

Hisgen delights in telling how they used to get up at 5 o'clock in the morning from day to day to make a fresh supply of the axle grease. Deciding on the selling price, day's receipts paid the household expenses and bought raw material for the next day's supply. Soon after sun-up they were all waiting for the farmers at the market place.

The goods had merit in them, apparently, and it wasn't long before the retail merchants were coming to the Hisgen brothers for them. About this time two of the brothers were devoting all their time to making the grease and Tom and another to its sale. Soon afterwards the selling agencies were covering the entire country, from Atlantic to Pacific. In 1895, when Tom's concern was five or six years old, they leased a factory for four long by 40 feet wide on the outskirts of Albany.

This was found too small in its turn, and in 1899 the Four Brothers bought land and erected a factory 200 feet long by 225 feet wide, with 75,000 feet of floor space.

The Standard Oil watchdog pricked up its ears about now and growled ravenously. Who were these upstarts who were buying so much Oil? They must have a good thing. Isn't it about time that WE had it?

Thomas L. Hisgen has told many times about the first visit of the Standard Oil forces.

"When we moved into this much larger factory in 1899," he says, "the late Senator Davis of New York came to see us in the interest of the Standard Oil people and made us the flattering offer of $500,000 for the good will of the business. We had built up this business in ten years from nothing. We were all young and ambitious, and we thought that if the business was worth $500,000 to the Standard Oil Company it was worth as much to us. We were making money, and we were constantly extending the business. Our Four Brothers' brand of axle grease had become the largest selling brand in the country, if not the world. We refused the offer because we enjoyed being in business for ourselves and wished to keep right on.

Had to Sell Oil to Meet the Trust's Fight.

"Up to that time we hadn't had the remotest idea of going into the oil business, but when we refused to sell out the Standard Oil Company employed the usual tactics. It offered its own axle grease at almost any price. Standard interests practically bought up the retail dealer. There, if we are going to sell kerosene oil to you, we have got to sell you axle grease.' 'There wasn't anything for us to do, if we were going to keep our retailers, but jump into the oil business and go to fighting the Standard Oil people with the Independent refiners. We jumped.

"What the Standard Oil Company has tried to do to the Hisgens since that day, and what it has done, is well known to the Massachusetts and Eastern New York Hisgen told all about it at Albany last February when he was declared to be the strongest witness produced by the Federal Government in its suit to dissolve the Standard Oil Company.

How are some of the things which Mr. Hisgen testified under oath, the Oil Trust did in its efforts to ruin his business:

Cut the price of oil in half, or give it away.

Raised prices in non-competitive territory while cutting them in the Hisgen district.

Tried to buy the Hisgens out; refused, threatened to cut off the oil supply if merchants dealt with the Hisgen axle grease.

Refused from the same tank to fill for five cents a gallon, and to another dealer for ten cents per gallon, rebates.

Had a special agent appointed an inspector at Springfield, Mass., and then condemned Hisgen oil all round for use.

Organized various "independent" concerns to fight the Four Brothers.

Trust Made Public Pay the Price of the Battle.

So far as Massachusetts is concerned, the rest of the State has had to pay in tribute to the Oil Trust the expenses of the anti-Hisgen fight. For instance, there have long been Hisgen oil stations at Springfield and Holyoke and Pittsfield and Northampton, and one starting up in the country for miles around them.

In April, 1907, L. B. Whipple of Springfield, bought 150 gallons of oil from the Standard Oil Company for seven cents a gallon. H. F. Foster, at East Brewster, Cape Cod, paid eleven and a half cents a gallon at the same time for fifty-five gallons of the same quality. These names and prices are cited because Mr. Hisgen possesses and produces CANCELLED CHECKS which have been signed by the men AMERICAN have reproduced, the sales slips.

In addition to the Standard Oil Company can the price of oil at Springfield to Hisgen, where Hisgen disagrees, is as follows. The trust made it 7½ cents a gallon. Hisgen were getting it for 5 cents. They continued to get it.

Standard Oil was astounded; what allied these Springfield people, anyhow?

A Springfield grocer answered the question:

"We know," he said, "that if the Hisgens go down the price of oil will go up, and stay up. The people here know it, too, and they stick by Springfield boys for Hisgen oil. We buy it for much less than we will have to pay for it as soon as Standard Oil gets the upper hand."

Standard Oil's special, wholesale price of oil has been in vain, when the inhabitant of Springfield has been paying 2 cents at retail, and getting his can thrown in for good measure.

Who, in fact, complaining, Mr. Hisgen is paying strict attention to the oil business on at West Springfield, where the Four Brothers' Independent Oil Company has three oil tanks with a capacity of 12,000 gallons. Tom Hisgen, president of a $10,000 corporation which does an annual business of $175,000 in axle grease alone, is on the job soon after 8 o'clock in the morning, he stay until 7 in the evening. Then he goes home.

"The Hisgens," Springfield says, "are saving the people of Western Massachusetts $1,000,000 a year."

SLAIN GIRL'S BODY FOUND IN BONFIRE

Mysterious Crime Revealed in Brooklyn; Man Held on Suspicion.

NEW YORK, July 29.—One of the most startling murders that has come to light in Brooklyn in many years was revealed to-day in the finding of the charred body of a young woman in the rear of a stable at No. 346 Greenpoint avenue, in the Williamsburg section.

The victim, who was apparently twenty-six years of age, had first been killed by a drug, her clothing was saturated with vitriol so that all marks of identification might be destroyed, and then her slayer removed the body to a desolate spot and set fire to it. The features were so badly burned that they were unrecognizable, Joseph Ruddick, who found the body burning and put out the flames, was arrested by the police as a suspicious person. He told stories so widely different in detail that Captain Kuhne of the Brooklyn Detective Bureau ordered his detention as a suspicious person.

An examination of the body revealed the fact that the woman was about 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighed about 133 pounds. She wore a shirt waist of white with lace insertion. Her skirt was a black and white check of good material. Around the neck hung a pair of sunpanes, just above a big bloodstained collar. The police were not certain whether this had been made by the stab of a knife or whether she was bruised by those who handled her. Both arms and legs were securely bound with big ropes and parts found near here evidence that they had been wrapped around the mattress.

RISKS LIFE TO SAVE TWO FROM FLAMES

John Murphy, 18 Years Old, Saves Little Ones in South End Fire.

At the risk of his own life, John Murphy, eighteen, rescued two little children from flames which ravaged the lower floor of the three-family brick tenement house at No. 6 Seneca street, South End, just before noon to-day.

Mrs. Louis Sacks, ill and in bed in the parlor, with her one-year-old baby Emma lying beside her, saw the flames in the kitchen and a bedroom adjoining. Leaving her child, she rushed in search of her two little children, Murphy was first on the scene. Hearing the flames and dense smoke, he rushed into the kitchen to find three-year-old Bernard Sacks sitting on the kitchen floor and crying all oblaze. Throwing a blanket around the little fellow, Murphy carried him to the street and extinguished the flames.

The care of him, quick, the young man ran up the stairs to the second floor, this time dashing back into the burning room.

Mrs. Sacks, meanwhile, stood on the sidewalk, pleading that some one save her baby. Murphy ran from room to room and finally found little Emma on the bed crying. He carried her to the street and was cheered by the spectators.

The firemen had arrived in the meantime and soon had the fire extinguished. The damage was $500. Murphy, refusing to be complimented, went on his way. He would not give his address.

VANDERBILT'S STEP-SON IS KILLED IN AUTO

Special Cable to Boston American.

PARIS, July 29.—The killing of G. Winthrop Sands, a stepson of W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., in an automobile accident near Poissy to-day, led to the report that Mr. Vanderbilt himself was a victim.

Neither Vanderbilt nor his wife was in the machine when the accident occurred. The accident happened near Poissy, which is twenty miles from Paris. The car turned over and Mr. Sands was pinned beneath the wreckage. His body was extricated with the greatest difficulty. The Chateau St. Louis at Poissy is the summer home of Mr. Vanderbilt and the dying man was carried in there immediately after the accident.

Mr. Sands's mother was Mrs. Samuel Stevens Sands before her marriage to W. K. Vanderbilt in 1903. Mr. Sands entered Harvard in 1904 and a year later was married to Miss Taylor Newton. Mr. Sands was twenty-seven years old at the time of his death.

CLEARS THE COMPLEXION BY A SIMPLE METHOD

The recent announcement by one of the best known complexion specialists in this country that Stillman's Freckle Face Bleach is the only preparation that will positively remove freckles, pimples and blackheads and make the complexion has attracted wide attention among women everywhere, particularly among those whose otherwise good looks have been marred by unsightly complexions.

So many women thus afflicted have written to Mme. Ruppert for advice and information on the subject that she has decided to place on sale at the toilet goods department of Houghton & Dutton's and leading drug stores in Boston a bottle of her famous face bleach at the special price of 18 cents, which is entirely sufficient to cure any complexion which is slightly affected, and at the same time demonstrate at once its wonderful properties to the most skeptical women. The $2 size of Face Bleach, which is often necessary in very poor complexions, may also be obtained at these stores.

SEARCH FOR COMPANION OF HAZEL DREW

TROY, N. Y., July 29.—The New York city detectives, acting for the Troy authorities have begun a search of New York city in an endeavor to learn the movements of Hazel Drew there and learn the identity of her companion.

This move was made by District Attorney James B. O'Brien when he learned that a young woman who gave her name to the police as Miss Drew went to New York from Albany on the steamboat Sarah Boyce on Friday.

In response to a request from New York photographers of the pretty face of the Troy Pool tragedy were sent to New York to-day. It would have been possible for Hazel to have gone to New York on the Saratoga on Monday and to have been back in Troy again the following Saturday.

Two new witnesses who are expected to throw light on the mystery have been found by the Troy detectives.

HERE'S WORK FOR 7,000 MEN

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 29.—The Soo railway has placed an order with the State Free Employment Bureau for 7,000 men. They are wanted at once for roads in Minnesota and North Dakota, and the wages offered run from $2 to $3 a day with board. Under the order several hundred men have already been placed.

MANCHESTER YOUTH LOST.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 29.—Thomas J. LOWELL MAN DIES SUDDENLY.

ST. JOHN, N. B., July 29.—While coming down the St. John River on the steamer Empire to-day Frank C. Bellarrell, a retired contracting and wealthy real estate owner of Lowell, Mass., died suddenly from the bursting of a blood vessel in the region of the heart.

LEFT DAUGHTER SUICIDE NOTE

Miss Clara July Meeks, the eighteen-year old daughter of John H. Meeks of West Roxbury and Mrs. James Heglin of West Lane, Roxbury, is reported awaiting the return of the police in the morgue to receive the body of her father, who is believed to be a suicide by drowning in the Charles River basin, near the West Roxbury boathouse yesterday morning.

A note found in a letter left by Miss Meeks, a bridge informed his daughter that he intended suicide by drowning.

YOUNG SOLDIER HANGS HIMSELF

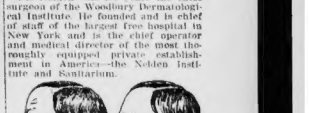
WEST POINT, July 29.—After having ended his military career by hanging himself to a tree in the rear of the barracks, Andrew Jackson, who died at 6:45 Pine street, Bangor, were notified. The young man was twenty-one years old. He last enlisted in the artillery detachment here, John L. Andrews, a Bangor, Me., boy.

WHAT DEFECTS ARE IN YOUR FACE?

SOME FACE DEFORMITIES, NATURAL AND ACCIDENTAL, THAT ARE READILY OVERCOME BY THE CELEBRATED PLASTIC SURGEON, A. J. NELDEN, M. D., FORMER CHIEF SURGEON, AND NOW LESSEE OF THE MEDICAL AND SURGICAL DEPARTMENT OF THE WOODBURY INSTITUTE.

A. J. NELDEN, M. D.

Dr. Nelden was for years the chief surgeon of the Woodbury Dermatological Institute. He founded and is chief of staff of the largest free hospital in New York and is the chief consulting and medical director of the most thoroughly equipped private establishment in America—the Nelden Institute and Sanitarium.



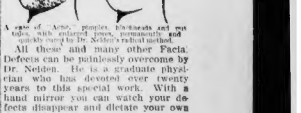
Ugly bump nose straightened.

These pictures illustrate better than words the changes that turned Homeliness into Beauty, Deformity into Symmetry.

In some cases the life of the person was turned from timidity and shrinking from the society of others into that self-confidence that comes only with the feeling of personal attractiveness and equality.

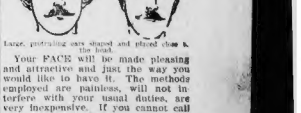
A broken, flat nose broke made straight.

Women especially can appreciate the difference between being unbecomingly gowned or looking shabby. How much greater, then, is the difference between a pretty face and one—a crooked nose or a straight one—a dingy, ugly skin or a skin like peaches and cream.



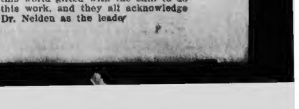
Heavy wrinkles over the entire face removed.

Much credit is due Dr. Nelden's assistants for their work. Constant study and experience enable them to render invaluable assistance.



A case of Acne, pimples, blackheads and red nose, with enlarged pores, permanently and quickly cured by Dr. Nelden's radical method.

All these and many other Facial Defects can be painlessly overcome by Dr. Nelden. He is a graduate physician who has devoted over twenty years to this special work. With a hand mirror you can watch your defects disappear and dictate your own Facial Corrections.



Large, protruding ears shaped and placed close to head.

Your FACE will be made pleasing and attractive and just the way you would like to have it. The methods employed are painless, will not interfere with your usual duties, are very inexpensive. If you cannot call in person, write Dr. A. J. Nelden, at 58 Winter St., Boston, care Woodbury, for any information you wish. Your letter will be treated with strict confidence and answered fully and at once. There are very few persons in this world gifted with the skill to do this work, and they all acknowledge Dr. Nelden as the leader

Mothers of Great Men

The Quick-Tempered Mother of Kepler

By REV. THOS. B. GREGORY

COPERNICUS, Kepler, Galileo, Newton. Where in the mighty Hierarchy of Intellect shall we look for a more splendid quartette?

Copernicus had simplified the great problem by setting the sun at the centre and by showing that the planets had their laws.

Kepler, observing the motions of the planets, set himself to the task of explaining them.

Galileo, in the meantime, was busy at the same task, and succeeded in showing that since the planets do not travel in straight lines, they must be under the action of some force, and that, since the planets are constantly deflected toward the centre round which they travel, they must be under some centripetal force.

Newton then came along and demonstrated what that centripetal force was, viz., gravitation, the mainspring of the celestial mechanism.

Kepler's glory lies in the fact that he discovered the true movement of the planets, an law down in his famous "Three Laws."

Kepler's Three Laws

1—Each planet moves in an ellipse around the sun, which is situated in one focus of that ellipse.

2—A straight line extending from the sun to the centre of a planet sweeps over equal surfaces in equal times.

3—The squares of the periodic times of the planets vary as to the cubes of their mean distances.

As ordinary mortals are but poorly prepared to appreciate the significance of these stupendous discoveries. They smack of the superhuman and the infinite, and all that we can do is to wonder at the supernal mental gifts that made them possible.

In the case of Kepler, too, it is to be remembered that he was handicapped as but few thinkers have ever been since thinkers have existed. He was born prematurely, and consequently began life at a distance with a frail, weak body.

At the age of four he was stricken with smallpox, which dread disease left him half blind, or at least with a decidedly enfeebled eyesight.

In addition to all this he was, his life through, subjected to the most trying interruptions and to the most harassing cares, which sorely tried his patience and interfered with that mental peace and calm so essential to first-class mental achievements.

And yet, in spite of all these crosses, the fortunately, I have a reputation of stealing other girls' beaus. Now people will surely think I deceived my sister. This man is to blame for this mistake. He was always kind and polite to both of us, but always escorted my sister home from church and other places.

MY dear, when a girl has a reputation of stealing other girls' beaux there is usually good ground for the reputation. Are you quite sure that you have acted perfectly true to your sister? Perhaps if you effaced yourself for a time the man would return to her. Have you ever tried? If you owe it to her to try that plan and see if it works. If it does not, and the man persists in his love for you, you will be free to him, I suppose, but I think it will cause hard feelings between your self and your sister.

Arrested as a Witch

There is no proof that Catherine Kepler was a bad woman, save that awful tongue of hers, coupled with her original views and bluff, unguarded action, gave the gossips the chance they wanted, and indeed, did, she was accused of being a sorceress.

A spiritual born fighter, she encountered with a sniff for libel. The suit was purposely instituted in the Imperial Court, and in 1620, about the time that the "Pilgrim Fathers" were setting sail in the Mayflower upon the famous rock in Plymouth harbor, the mother of the illustrious astronomer was arrested on a formal charge of witchcraft.

Kepler immediately left his study and started to her defence. Her case, of course, devoted an entire year to the advocacy of her cause.

Contrary to the general expectations and desire, for it was a time of intense superstition and inveterate prejudices, she was acquitted, after having suffered thirteen months of imprisonment and much acute torture of mind and body.

The indefatigable zeal and unanswerable arguments of the faithful son prevailed with the judges, and when, a few weeks later, Kepler tenderly laid the broken-hearted old woman away in her grave he had the satisfaction of knowing that he had been faithful to his highest earthly duty—his duty to his mother.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

WRITE AND EXPLAIN

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man and have been keeping company with a young lady. Lately while out walking with an out-of-town cousin, whom my lady friend doesn't know, I met this young lady, but she did not notice me. It seems that she followed us and saw me kiss my cousin good-by. Since that she has acted very coolly toward me. I have tried to explain, but she will not give me a chance. I have never told this young lady of my love for her and feel afraid to do so now under the circumstances.

J. F.

UNDER the circumstances it was quite natural that she should treat you coolly. The only thing you can do is write and explain matters. When you tell her the young lady was your cousin, she will understand. Why did you not stop at the time and introduce the girls?

STEALING GIRLS' BEAUX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young woman of twenty-two and have an older sister who is very good to me. She was always faithful to me, and many times in my sake she would deprive herself of many pleasures. I have had many and many admirers, but she never accepted any men because I did not love them. A young man who called at our house very often for about a year was looked upon by friends and neighbors as my sister's future husband. She loves him dearly and she is under the impression that he loves her also and expects to win him soon. Here is the trouble is that I am deeply in love with this gentleman, and was willing to lose him but fate took a hand and caused to me and asked me to marry him. Please tell me what I should do. I want to be true to both. If I accept him my sister will cry, and if I refuse him, then I am false. If I refuse him, then I am false. If I refuse him, I'll have him, for he loves me. Un-

NEED NOT INVITE THEM

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

We are two sisters, eighteen and twenty years of age, and for the last eight months have been going out with two gentlemen. They call on us once a week, and on Saturday or Sunday at 9 o'clock take up a box of candy and flowers. The gentlemen take it for granted that we know where they will call, and, therefore, do not mention it. Now, we think it proper for them to tell us when they are coming, but they realize it is young girls to be treated when we wish them to call. We do not wish them to think we are just waiting for them, and, therefore, do not intend to would ask you to kindly tell us which of the two we are to invite them or for them to tell us when they intend to call.

T. T.

IT is an understood thing that they are to call on certain days, there is no occasion for you to write and invite them. It would be absurd for you to be always inviting them. If they do not call on special days, they should discourage you, or run the risk of your being out.

Good Games for the Little People

HERE'S a new way of playing "blind man's buff." It isn't so exciting as the old way, but, on the other hand, it is a good deal quieter. Select a space such as a doorway, and in front of it, some distance away, put a lighted candle. The "blind man" she or she is to be under the influence of some force, and that, since the planets are constantly deflected toward the centre round which they travel, they must be under some centripetal force.

Newton then came along and demonstrated what that centripetal force was, viz., gravitation, the mainspring of the celestial mechanism.

Kepler's glory lies in the fact that he discovered the true movement of the planets, an law down in his famous "Three Laws."

Kepler's Three Laws

1—Each planet moves in an ellipse around the sun, which is situated in one focus of that ellipse.

2—A straight line extending from the sun to the centre of a planet sweeps over equal surfaces in equal times.

3—The squares of the periodic times of the planets vary as to the cubes of their mean distances.

As ordinary mortals are but poorly prepared to appreciate the significance of these stupendous discoveries. They smack of the superhuman and the infinite, and all that we can do is to wonder at the supernal mental gifts that made them possible.

In the case of Kepler, too, it is to be remembered that he was handicapped as but few thinkers have ever been since thinkers have existed. He was born prematurely, and consequently began life at a distance with a frail, weak body.

In addition to all this he was, his life through, subjected to the most trying interruptions and to the most harassing cares, which sorely tried his patience and interfered with that mental peace and calm so essential to first-class mental achievements.

And yet, in spite of all these crosses, the

J F you were a big, strong man and some one told you that you could be jealous of a downy-headed atom only a few weeks old, you would probably smile in derision.

Nevertheless, it is a state of affairs that quite often comes to pass. Many a stalwart young father has been jealous over the devotion shown by his wife to their baby son or daughter.

It is the most causeless jealousy on earth, as every true woman loves her husband all the more for having borne him a child.

But the foolish young father does not stop to consider that fact. He only knows that the love and attention which before were entirely lavished on him must now be shared.

If he did but know it, this great joy that has come to them binds him and his wife all the closer together.

They have had other interests in common, but nothing like this. Nothing can equal the sweet communion of planning the future of that soft bundle of flannel and lace.

What a living wonder he will be when he grows up and holds the world spellbound by his eloquence or prowess! And if the young mother were not centred heart and soul in her baby, would not the father think her strangely lacking?

The maternal instinct is the strongest thing in the woman nature. Other loves may die, but the love of woman for the child she has brought into the world is deathless.

Woman's love of her child, however, does not in the least conflict with her love of her husband. There is this difference—that, while she depends upon her husband, her child depends upon her.

There is an appeal stronger than anything else in the world in the magic of those helpless, wondering fingers. And when the mother looks in the baby face she thinks: "Oh, my little child! you are a thousandfold more dear to me, in that you are the child of the man I love."

The woman who has borne a child loves all the world more than she ever did before, because life seems such a wonderful, joyous thing to her.

If the child is a son, she dreams happy mother dreams of the time when he will be as wonderful a man as his father.

So, don't you see, Mr. Young Father, that when you see yourself deserted, and supplanted, you are creating the entire situation out of nothing?

It is simply that your little family circle has widened to take in something infinitely precious to both your wife and yourself—a common interest that will draw you closer to each other every year of your lives.

There is no room for jealousy in that circle; only room for great rejoicing and much strengthened love for each other.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

She Wasn't Like the Other Girls

Being a Homely Lesson in the Gentle Art of Giving a Dose of Taffy.

By KENNETT HARRIS.

"TELL ye," said the store keeper, "seems to me it's how the kind o' goods that suit a lady with a complexion an' figger like you're apt to find a ready sale. Now, there was a young feller in here a spell ago, an' he wanted to get a present for his girl. I don't mind her name, but I'm free to say 'taint everybody could wear it."

The woman whose husband had just deposited two crocks of butter and a large bucket of eggs on the counter before her paused her hand caressingly beneath the fabric that the storekeeper had several invitings before her.

"I don't know, but it is a terrible mite gaudy," she says, "but I reckon I'll let you cut me off a pattern. You kin make it extry full, I don't mind. I like 'em shinny."

"I thought that woman had some sense," observed Jeff Baker, when the balance of the trade had been settled and the woman had left the store with her purchases. "Did you hear what Rube saw to that young feller's her figger an' her complexion? An' never cracked a smile?"

"Pretty raw break," assented Washington Hancock. "But Rube don't know no better. He's got the idea that the more guff he can hand a female the better she'll like it. He don't give anything that wears petticoats credit for havin' hoss sense, an' he's lost a right smart o' trade just that way."

It Didn't Hurt the Sale

"Mis' Gruber knowed what she wanted, all right. She says she wanted a pair o' cuffs an' green right from the start, but Rube thinks he done the trick."

"I'll tell right," said the storekeeper. "I take notice that it didn't hurt the sale none. Not but what Mis' Gruber has a right trim figger," he added politically.

"You might have throwed her off just the same," contended Hancock. "There was a gal right where I used to live down in Maine that wittened half a dozen fellers that was tryin' to spark her just on account o' their tellin' her how likely an smart she was.

"I remember half a dozen times or more hearin' her shet a feller right up when he started in to give her taffy. 'I don't keer about list'nin to that sort o' nonsense,' she'd say. 'If you want to talk to me you kin just talk sensible.' An' she'd keep on so severe that they'd be plumb skeered to say a word.

"Maybe after they got over it a little they'd come around with a bigger an' fake out, or set on the porch with her, but the first time they'd open their bulds to tell her how good lookin' she was she'd say for them to quit their foolin'.

"One or two hung around talkin' about silos an' spring wheat an' what was the best kind o' corn to fat hawgs, until they sprung matrimony on her. An' then they quit nattered.

"Some of the boys allowed it was beans they ratcheted off on her, but beans too easy, but a feller name o' Clayt Pessenden allowed it was beets she got had too much sense.

Giving Her Taffy By Proxy

"He tole some o' the other gals the same thing—kep' right on a-sayin' it, an' pretty feller got to hear about it. She seen that Clayt had been takin' stock of her outen the corners of his eyes for some time, but a feller name o' Clayt Pessenden allowed it was beets she got had too much sense.

"She got miffed some about that, an' it got so she'd turn up her nose at him every time ever he was around at any of the dola's in the neighborhood, but he kep' pestered. An' if never let on that he was pestered. An' if ever he spoke to her he silos allowed that she sort more sense than any other gal in seven townships.

"Then one day runaway until one o' them spring freshets come down, an' as Clayt was comin' off the road with her in the buggy he seen that the bridge was washed out. He seen what was the matter. Second like her hoss had fell down, an' Clayt got up quick an' held back on the shafts. Clayt got out an' looked at it, an' seen that it couldn't be fixed 'thout takin' it to the shop.

"'I'll tell you what,' he says, 'an we'll tie your hoss behind an' I'll drive you to town.'

"'That's right clever of you, Mr. Pessenden,' she says, an' she looked at him set out.

"They jogged along quite a piece, Clayt thinkin' strictly o' business an' not openin' his head. Finally she looked at him out o' the corner of their eyes an' he looked at her. An' the way he looked wasn't nowways bashful.

"'Well,' she says at last, 'talk, why don't you say somethin'?'

"'Becus I hain't nothin' to say,' says Clayt.

"'You're allus got a-plenty to say to the other gals,' she says.

Not Like Other Girls

"'You hain't like the other gals,' says Clayt. 'There's a heap o' difference.'

"'In what way do you don't like me?' she asks.

"'I think a heap o' you,' says Clayt, sober as a judge.

"She studied a moment an' then she says, 'Why?'

"'Becus you've got sense,' he says, an' chicked to his hoss.

"She studied on that awhile. Presently she says, 'Is that all?' an' then she turned red to the back of her neck.

"'That's purty enough to talk about, you hain't got anythin' agin me,' she says, bitin'.

"'If I did I'd probly make you mad,' says Clayt.

"'It's this way,' he says. 'I'm a feller that says right out what he thinks, an' I might tell you the rest o' what I think of you if you'd ever give me the right to tell you, anyway. I'm a hunkered or I'd have took you before. Now, see here,' he says, 'what I'm goin' to say ain't nowise flattery, but it's sense an' truth an' a gal who's got sense will see it is.

"'I'll tell you. If you don't I'll keep it to myself.'

"'I reckon you might as well tell me,' she says, breakin' down in the weak.

"'Then I'll tell you that if you had all the beans in the world, an' all the silos o' beans for you if you wasn't the prettiest gal that I ever laid my eyes on.'

Clayt.

"'You've got sense enough to hate the livin' truth ain't soft soap.

"'There ain't another gal like you in this country nor the State of Mirmoure, nor the United States, nor the hull blame universe. There ain't nary one o' them has the creation for looks nor sense. There ain't face like yours, nor hair like yours, nor eyes, nor a hand, nor a foot, nor a walk.

"'I've seen gals a-plenty, an' pretty gals, an' pictures o' gals that was prettier than what they was, but the prettiest picture of a look cheap when you was beside it, an' the prettiest gal ain't pretty enough to stay in the same acre lot. I've got the sense to know it an' you've got sense to know that I ain't tryin' to lie to you. Ain't you?'

"'I don't think you would lie to me,' says Belle, 'but I don't hardly believe I'm as pretty as all that.'

"'You're as pretty as a picture,' says Clayt, 'an' you're sensible.'

"'Some studies a moment an' then she says, 'Why?'

"'Becus you've got sense,' he says, an' chicked to his hoss.

"She studied on that awhile. Presently she says, 'Is that all?' an' then she turned red to the back of her neck.

MILITIAMEN CHARGE OFFICER HELD FUNDS

GOVERNOR ORDERS COURT-MARTIAL TRIAL OF LIEUT. BELCHER OF SIGNAL CORPS.

Governor Guild has ordered Lieutenant Robert E. Belcher of the signal corps, M. V. M., who is charged with having misappropriated some $500 of the State's money which was due the men in the command for duty at the Chelsea fire, be tried by court-martial.

The specific charge upon which Lieutenant Belcher will be tried will be "conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman," and upon the developments of the court-martial will depend what further action may be taken.

The court-martial was ordered after a number of complaints from soldiers of the signal corps had been brought to the attention of the adjutant-general.

The adjutant-general's office has no knowledge of the whereabouts of Lieutenant Belcher, although his wife says he is now in Maine, a sick man.

Investigate Use of Funds.

The soldiers were indignant and used some very strong language about the way, as they thought, they were being used by the State. They asserted that soldiers of other organizations that had done duty in Chelsea had been paid.

The men explained to the adjutant-general that the money was needed, and supposed it was being withheld because of an oversight of some kind at headquarters.

An investigation resulted, when it was discovered that money to the extent of about $6888 had been paid Lieutenant Belcher, who had receipted for it.

No part of this money, an investigation has revealed, was paid over to the men and then, after calling a meeting for the purpose, entered formal complaint with Adjutant-General Britton and Governor Guild.

Belcher Not in State.

It was then that a second inquiry revealed the fact that Lieutenant Belcher had left the State.

The statements of his friends was that he was in such ill-health that a trip was absolutely necessary. Accordingly, as the best possible solution of the difficulty, inquiry into the matter was postponed from time to time in the hope that the lieutenant would recover sufficiently to appear and explain things to the satisfaction of the military authorities.

Lieutenant Belcher has of late been a resident of Malden. He is a lawyer, with an office at No. 24 Milk street, but his residence was at No. 39 Rosslin street, Dorchester.

MONTH'S SALE OF FURNITURE ON THIS WEEK

Hundreds of Shoppers Take Advantage of Bargains at Siegel Store.

People from all parts of New England are taking advantage of the values offered during the Henry Siegel Company at its big furniture sale and are furnishing and refurnishing their homes. The sale began Monday and continues through August. For the first two days of the sale the receipts in this furniture department exceeded any two days in its record.

Within one hour of the opening of the store on the first two days the receipts of 1,000 people made purchases.

Owing to the recent financial depression large furniture manufacturers have found themselves overstocked and have disposed of their stocks to the ellury Siegel Company at low prices.

Newly-wedded couples have taken advantage of the exceptionally low prices and are furnished their homes from this sale at a saving of from 25 to 50 per cent.

On the fourth floor are complete suits, tables, chairs, rockers, bedsteads, buffets, sideboards, couches and divans.

To-morrow exceptional bargains will be offered in handsome brass bedsteads and parlor suites of three pieces.

"Help" we have been unable to properly wait upon the customs," said Mr. R. G. Alexander, manager of the furniture department to-day. "We expected to be busy, but our business has greatly exceeded our anticipations. Extra furniture packers, teams and carriages have been hired so that the deliveries may be made on time. The sale, which continues until September 1, promises to be a record breaker. The interest will not lag, for new values will be offered every day."

Mr. Alexander has been chosen manager of the New York Furniture Exposition.

PROCTER & GAMBLE P. & G. NAPHTHA SOAP

Please Read This Letter.

It is from a Brooklyn woman who uses P. & G. Naphtha Soap.

"I cannot express my thanks for the introduction of this valuable soap. It is miraculous. It formerly took me almost all day Monday to wash. Now, I am entirely through by eleven o'clock. I cannot tell you how much easier my work is. I talk of it to all my friends and feel I should like to tell everyone. In our city who wash so hard with other soaps to know of this wonderful soap."

Note particularly the statement: "I am entirely through by eleven o'clock".

Are you through then?

You should be. You will be, if you use P. & G. Naphtha Soap.

P. & G. Naphtha Soap is for sale in almost every grocery in this city.

The price is 5 cents a cake.

ADVERTISE YOUR WANTS IN BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN

RECORD CROWDS IN EXCURSIONS OF OUTING CLUB

Summer Park Attractions Applauded by Throng of Parents and Little Ones.

There were so many visitors at Paragon Park Monday and Tuesday that patrons of the Palm Garden were forced to wait their turn for tables from 4 to 5 p. m., and when Professor Bonetta made ready for his famous balloon ascension the crowd swelled by the Sunday American Outing Club, was so large that they could not obtain admittance to the inclosed ground where the balloon is daily liberated.

The "Flaming Demon" met with a severe accident while giving his performance last Monday, but is able to go on each day with several stitches in the back of his head where he came in contact with a stick of wood as he dove into the water after slanting down a hundred-foot incline with his clothes on fire. He was rescued from the flames by Lee Barrett, contortionist in Leander's One-Ring Circus, who dove after the unfortunate man.

Fully 15,000 members of the Sunday American Outing Club at Wonderland Park Monday and Tuesday. On Tuesday of next week 125,000 Knights of Columbus will hold an outing at Wonderland.

The SUNDAY AMERICAN will publish two free tickets for one on Monday and Tuesday, one for admission, the other for a souvenir for the "House That Jack Built."

The second division of the Sunday American Outing Club to visit Valley Falls, R. I., goes to-morrow with thirty cents' worth of free tickets clipped from the SUNDAY AMERICAN, admitting the bearer to the Rapids in the Roman Gardens. On Saturday, children under ten years will attend with SUNDAY AMERICAN free tickets and get souvenirs given by the park management.

The Baby Show is on at Vanity Fair this week, in which each baby gets a gold ring. Prizes aggregating $500 will be awarded by the staff of judges chosen from among the prominent physicians of Providence and vicinity.

Yesterday the Sunday American Outing Club held its weekly outing at Crescent Park, Rhode Island, equipped with thirty cents' worth of free tickets to the park's best attractions including Hales' Tours, the Mammoth Chutes and the Coney Island Tickler.

It was the biggest attendance yet of the Outing Club and things were humming afternoon and evening around through the park's big fun works.

Here is the list of free attractions published in next Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN for use on Monday's Free Outing Publishing.

Admission to the theatre, ten cents; House of Mirth, five cents; Laughing Gallery, five cents; Merry-Go-Round, five cents.

This is a total of twenty-five cents' worth of entertainment in one of the finest combination parks in New England where they have water, woods, hills, valleys and fun works, with electric car service running right into the park.

The largest crowd of the SUNDAY AMERICAN guests of the season visited the park last Monday. Friday another big crowd will attend.

The annual show at Lexington Park includes beasts that are almost human. They go to Cuba every Winter on exhibition and return each year to welcome the Outing Club readers of the SUNDAY AMERICAN and other park guests.

Nearly everything is free in Lexington Park, once you are admitted. Each week the SUNDAY AMERICAN will publish another free ticket of park admission.

Next SUNDAY'S BOSTON AMERICAN will publish a set of free tickets for Paragon Park worth 60 cents in park tickets as follows: Admission to the park and bathing, free attractions, admission to Merry Widow House, admission to Allgeier's Farm, two rides for 5 cents and a free ticket on the Roller Coaster, one ride for 5 cents and a coupon on the Coaster, the Ferrari Animal Show, a 25 cent attraction, for a free ticket and 10 cents' worth at the Vaudeville Theatre for a ticket and 5 cents, all for one on Monday or Tuesday, day or evening.

CAUGHT IN SHAFT; WHIRLED TO DEATH

BURLINGTON, Vt., July 29.—The body of Edward Payne, aged forty-five years, an employe of the Burlington Traction and Power Company, was found in the power house with every bone in his body crushed, in some manner he had become caught in the shafting and whirled to his death. He leaves four children.

HOLD J. E. DODGE FUNERAL THURSDAY

The body of James E. Dodge, the former Boston dry goods merchant, who was killed in an automobile accident at Black Brook, N. Y., on Sunday, was brought to his former home in Malden late last night, accompanied by Mrs. Dodge, her three children and Joseph Dodge, a brother of the dead merchant. The funeral will be held at the Dodge home on Bartlett street, Malden, to-morrow.

Here Is Where $1,000 Key Is Hidden; Find It

Here is the Key section of the Fenway, still more reduced in area. The $1,000 Key of the AMERICAN'S "Hidden—Not Lost" contest is in this section. If the Key is not found to-day a picture will be printed to-morrow giving a view from one direction of the EXACT SPOT where the Key is hidden.

Any Woman Can Find the $1,000 Gold Key

To-day's Picture of Its Hiding Place Is So Reduced in Area That Key Is Bound to Be Located.

By "The Money Man."

Getting warm—getting warm.

"The Money Man" expected every moment yesterday that the finder of the $1,000 Key would appear. But great expectations do not always deliver the goods. The Key, strange to say, still remains undiscovered.

To-day "The Money Man" keeps his promise by printing a picture on the Fenway showing the Key section still more reduced.

Study the picture carefully. Remember those TWO WORDS, frequently used in the mystery story, "Hidden—Not Lost," which make a fine clew when joined. Take them for your cue in this little drama of real life.

A word to the women. The Key is so hidden that a woman can find it as well as a man. She need not soil her dainty hands nor damage her pretty clothes. This is not a contest of masculine brawn or muscle. It is a game of wits, and who says woman's wit is not equal to man's? The women do not say so, certainly.

When you find the Key bring it to this office AS QUICKLY AND AS QUIETLY AS POSSIBLE.

Damage no property, public or private. Break no laws or ordinances. There is no need of it.

Suppose, for the sake of argument, that the Key is not found even to-day. Then "The Money Man" will publish to-morrow a view, from one direction, of the EXACT SPOT where the Key is concealed.

FIRE FOLLOWS THREATS IN RENT STRIKE

LYNN, July 29.—A fire believed to be incendiary started in a vacant tenement at No. 23 Vivian place early on Monday. The house is in the big block owned by William J. Snow, who had a rent strike among his Italian tenants last Winter. At the time of the strike similar threats were made of bodily harm to Snow or damage to his property. The police think the fire may have been set in revenge. State officer Arturo G. West is investigating the case to-day.

The Snow block is 7 shaped and occupies practically all of Vivian place. The house is divided into long blocks, so near together that they constitute nearly a continuous building. Over fifty families are quartered in the tenements.

The fire started or was set in a second floor room of the front segment and burned up through the roof before the firemen extinguished it. The damage in ouets to $2000. At the time of the rent outbreaks last Winter some of the ringleaders in the demonstrations against Landlord Snow said they were anarchists and that they believed in anarchistic methods. Fear was felt at the time that violent reprisals would be made against Snow.

GAILY DECKED FOR PYTHIANS

Wolf's (City Clothier) store, at the corner of Portland and Hanover streets, is one of the best stores in Boston to be elaborately decorated in honor of the coming conclave of the Knights of Pythias. Thousands of yards of bunting have been used to make up a gorgeous display. On the first floor, above the show windows, huge festoons of national colors have been arranged, and above them stretch mammoth streamers of red, white and blue. Shields and Pythian emblems adorn the corners and central loops of the streamers form the center of the display.

Sir Knights already on the ground for the convention will be loud in their praise of the display. Wolf's store is located in a section that is traversed daily by thousands on their way to and from the North Station. The decorations, therefore, have attracted wide attention.

Wolf's enterprise has been characterized as an indication of the way Boston buildings, on things. Wolf's corner is one of the foremost business marts in Boston, and it was made so by progressiveness of the well known men who are responsible for the firm's reputation.

SONDER BOATS WILL RACE AT MARBLEHEAD

BERLIN, July 29.—The Imperial Yacht Club of Kiel has formally announced that it will send three sonder class yachts to Marblehead in August of 1909 for a series of races with any three American boats that may be selected. The trials are open to all American clubs, under the auspices of the Eastern Yacht Club.

GROOM ADMITS WEDDING, BRIDE HAD DENIED IT

QUINCY, July 29.—Married? Who said I was? Why, it's no such thing. Some girl must have used my name."

Such was the greeting that friends of pretty Rosan Lena Page received when they called upon the young woman to-day to congratulate her upon her secret marriage in Providence yesterday to her employer, Nerces Hampsman Bayleric, a native of Turkey, who for several years has conducted a photograph gallery here.

While one of the friends was in the parlor, the groom, radiant with smiles, entered.

"Yes, we were married, but who's business is it? he volunteered, his smile changing to a frown.

And that was all either bride or groom would say about it.

The former Miss Page is twenty years old. High school graduate and a daughter of Charles W. Page, a machinist. Her husband is twelve years her senior. They refuse to tell why they choose to wed so quietly.

TWO HURT IN AUTO WRECK

DANVERS, July 29.—Three men and two women were pitched out of a big automobile numbered 4137 at the corner of Summer and Maple streets to-day when the man driving the car ran it into a telegraph pole in trying to avoid a horse and wagon.

The party left Auburndale this morning and was en route to Portsmouth, N. H. The car, owned by Frank Bowen, of Auburndale, one of the chauffeurs, were badly cut about the face and head. The injured ones were attended by a local physician. The car was reported a total loss. The party proceeded, refusing to give any names.

FORMER HUB COFFEE MERCHANT IS DEAD

Word was received in Boston to-day of the death of James L. Sives, prominently connected with the Chase & Sanborn Coffee Company for many years, who was interested in the boat "Willie on a train" running from Ogden, California, on a visit to Los Angeles.

Mr. Sives, who had been away from Boston for the past two years, was traveling for his wedding company. He was a leading Odd Fellow. He leaves a wife and two children now residing at Los Angeles, California.

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

M. and Mme. Legardes are a wealthy couple living in Paris. Their guests include Henri Bernstein, a famous author, and Mme. Legardes's brother, Richard Voysin, a young man of the world. Mme. Legardes has spoken for an article written by Bernstein, and Richard, in the absence of a secretary in his household, has undertaken to discover and return the drawer has been added of 20,000 francs.

They try the secretary and find the key is still missing, and Bernstein, after examining it, declares that it had been tampered with. Mme. Legardes suggests that Richard search the room, and he agrees to do so. Bernstein leaves.

Besides the servants there are in the house only Richard, Legardes and his wife, Bernstein and M. and Mme. Vossin, who are old friends.

Richard finds the drawer has been broken open, but finds and tries a duplicate key. Legardes, in a jealous mood, accuses his wife of flirting with Bernstein, and Richard, in defending her, is forced to tell him how Bernstein has been making love to her.

Legardes is robbed this time of 50,000 francs, and M. Cascades asserts the thefts to be the work of a gang of international thieves who arranges to enter the Legardes apartments by the roof. Richard offers his services to assist and to take with him his chief assistant, Alfred Jarvis.

Legardes, angry with Fernand for continuing to visit here unknown to her husband, upbraids him. Fernand begs her to leave her husband, but on telling him her husband would pull his ears if he knew of it, Fernand tells her he has written her and got the letters to her unseen by her husband from the servants. She leaves her husband arguing.

Legardes, Mme. Vossin, in the presence of Mme. Legardes, tell Jarvis that he is to be watched, and Jarvis, who has been agreed to by Richard, is installed in the household.

Legardes demands the name of Mme. Legardes's lover, and Richard indignantly refuses, declaring his sister's good name is at stake.

Finally Legardes, in a fit of jealousy, goes down, crosses-questions and urged to confess.

Mme. Legardes, in fear, begs Richard and Mme. Vossin Fernand's plight, concealing what Legardes knows.

"If FROM that evening I would have nothing but the smartest frocks, I went to the biggest dressmakers. Then I and I have beautiful undertakings, lessons and lace and ravishing hats. It became a mania that spread without ceasing, fed by the rise of your admiration, and all the money flowed up.

One morning Alice handed me up and I told her my worries, and she proposed to help me. She knew an underlinen woman, Mme. Herbin, who would take all my bills on her own account, the old and tax now to be paid monthly, and she would pay in interest, such interest, and they arranged it so that every reasonable bills as a blind.

What Wretches!"

For the first time the hard Voysin showed some of weakening. "What wretches! What wretches!"

"Then they began to press me, to wrong me to push me hard."

"Why didn't you throw yourself in my arms?" he exclaimed, incoherently.

"I was afraid, afraid for your forehead, till only I had dared. Oh, God! If only I had dared! But there was always in the face of losing your love. Then stocks! Alice had a friend, a banker, who let me have a hundred thousand francs.

"And after one arrival here one morning I received a terrifying call from Alice Bernstein. She had only just returned before in front of me Isabelle had exchanged some thousands of francs for the check I had given her, and I was to pass it later.

"Suddenly I felt a great shock inside. Almost without knowing what I was doing, I left Isabelle and ran to fall into Alice's handles. The dresser resisted. There was a struggle, and I got the check and—my God, I was lost! Richard, my darling, you never—"

Against his consensus will he made a movement to take her in his arms, but she rushed forward, seized his hand, covered it with kisses, then with tears in her eyes and started for the door.

"Where are you going?" she asked sharply. He stopped, drew his hand across his forehead then, with a sudden volte-face, "Going to tell your Raymond that he can sleep in peace. It is I who can no longer."

"You will tell him immediately?"

"Why, of course, I am a simple, honest man. He started for the door once more. "Now, then, good-by."

"Richard, think."

"I have thought best." My brain isn't capable of thought, Marie. There is only one thing to do, and I am going to do it."

"But you will keep me with you? You'll not send me away—"

"What childishness," he sneered. "To begin that again would be impossible!" His tones stung through to her inner self.

"Your Love Is All I Want"

"Think, Richard. Think, Richard, carefully. This contemptuous pardon you have given me. God knows I deserve no more. But our friends, Isabelle, Raymond. You are going to tell them? They may have to give up the house. Is it friendship to deal to you?"

"Let them go!" he asked.

She made a gesture putting it aside. "And if they do, you lose all that I have, all that I am fighting for."

"What are you fighting at?" he asked. Her real terror came out in the reply.

"I am fighting for the end of the scandal, to estrange Raymond and Isabelle from you, and then you will take me for it."

"You would have thought of that before you stole her money," he retorted.

She shook her head. "Cruel words can't help now, Richard. Tell me, what is the sense way of acting everybody without thinking, without fairness? I am willing, while conciliating?"

The first trace of his honesty came out in his reply. "You want to propose to me to keep silence? You want a little part? Don't you see that you insult me?"

"I am trying to act unconsciously," she retorted. "I know you are stronger and more intelligent and nobler than I am, and you were not my master should I love you as I do. Richard, I am quite of everything I have a right to cling to my happiness, to defend it. Richard, let us save our happiness."

"It's too late to think of that, Marie," he said, and his tone was decided. "I will be too late when you have denounced me. While you alone know it, there is a chance for me. You will not give me that chance."

"But, Richard," she answered firmly, but sadly.

But both he was weakening, and woman-like fought for her love the harder.

"Richard, I will make a way—a way that is acceptable, honorable."

"There are none."

"Yes," she cried. "I am mad, made for love, and I could to escape the hell it would be to see you hating me, for you would be unlike, and I am suffering already. You know, Richard, and you are suffering."

Against his wish she came closer. He felt her hot hand upon his face.

"Pay Back to the Last Sou"

He pushed her away from him gently. "You are asking me to keep Raymond's money."

"No, for a thousand times no," she cried. "You will pay Raymond back to the last sou. You will do that with what I receive. I will devote myself, how I will give up everything, everything that led to this terrible scandle."

"It is quite simple. You message Raymond's affairs. Without his knowledge you will put money in his pay. You will pay all at once, or monthly. We will save, save together, and in time repay. And, then, when the debt is complete, when you are no longer have a question of this wretched affair, I will make a golden opportunity for science, well, I will make it."

He looked at her intently. His look now. She was holding him close, begging, pleading with all the artillery of her love. The old influence was on him. He second he yield.

"Where would you lead us both, little criminal?" he asked softly.

"Love, criminal, criminal through love. Little intuitionist above that I was I would have said you were for a kiss from you. You give way; I feel you give way," she cried excitedly, "and perhaps, my darling, my precious, my beloved, I ought to be ashamed, but I am not ashamed. I am glad. I am glad I have been committed. It is heroic, sublime, and it is curious."

"Curious," he said with Marie-Sophie desperately for her love.

"Yes, curious calculation," she cried. "I took advantage of his generosity. I felt sure that Fernand had a deep affection."

"Bah!" sneered Richard. "A second ago you spoke of his schoolboy feeling."

"Don't try to trip me in my words," retorted the baffled woman. "You are telling the truth. You—"

He shouted. "The truth at last. We are to have the truth. Then if Fernand did not love you, why has he always clung into our rooms in the absence of Raymond, in the absence of Isabelle and in my absence?"

To Be Continued To-morrow.

AMUSEMENTS.

Dear Nell:—

There's always a big crowd watching Annette Kellermann diving and swimming, and I don't wonder at it. She's a remarkably handsome young woman and the most graceful diver and the most powerful swimmer imaginable. She's going to try to swim to Boston Light Thursday and, on the quiet, I've got a big bet that she'll win. Dan O'Leary, the world's ex-champion pedestrian, will give an exhibition walk Thursday at 4 o'clock at

Fighting Boer Fails to Land Decision

MURPHY WHIPS UNHOLZ

Ruddie Unholz may have obtained a draw with Battling Nelson, but those who saw Tommy Murphy, the little Harlem lightweight, win the decision from him at the Armory A. A. last night in twelve rounds wondered how he did it. There was no questioning the award of Referee Donnolly at the end of the time limit, as Murphy led from the start, beating the Boer a city block in cleverness.

The Boer looked like a Sandow in build, with bulging muscles all over his body and he had Joe Grim, the human punching bag, beaten to a frazzle for taking punishment. Murphy landed time and again on his jaw but could make no impression.

It was the "Wild Boer" from the start. He waded in like a maddened demon, trying to land a wild punch, and he did connect with one in the fourth round which completely completed Murphy's career. The Harlemite staggered around the ring with the fiery Boer chasing him and trying hard to put over a finishing clincher.

The Boer was a poor-looking boxing machine, depending on his ability to use strength entirely to win for him. He was a marvel of toughness, and it needed a sledge hammer to make any impression on his heavy jaw.

He was no match for skill with Murphy, who made him look like a straight novice in action besides his fast stepping and clever handling of his guards. As a long distance performer he should be a player, with his muscular construction and ability to take a lot of pounding, without showing any symptoms of feeling it.

His one best suit was rushing in madly, either battling with his head or making wild plunges for the jaw, but he missed by a shadow blow which would pull down the count. He did get one over in the fourth round, but could not follow it up before Murphy recovered and the setting was made Murphy do better work.

The Boer was lucky to get away with an amount of low hitting, as he clearly fouled Murphy, but as it was done unintentionally the referee overlooked it, though he was forced to warn the Boer several times afterwards.

Both weighed in at the ringside under the lightweight limit of 133 pounds and Murphy ruled strongly at ten to eight and better.

In the first preliminary Alger of Cambridge won from Johnny Allen of New York, getting the decision at the end of six rounds.

The semi-final bout was a pippin and beat anything seen in the local arena for fierce action. Bill McKinnon, the local boy, who made quite a name for himself down in the stout middleweights. McKinnon went out at the gong to get a long lead, and landed like curtains for the Irish champion, but he was game and after getting a few counters on the jaw got woke up and started counting a few times himself.

In the third round Killeen took the count, then came back and staggered McKinnon with a right cross on the jaw that sent him to the mat again in the fourth for the count. In the middle of the fifth he landed over on his back, unable to go on, as he had only taken a terrific body punishment from McKinnon, and was all in. Referee Donnelly stopped the bout and awarded Kinnon the crown. Killeen made a big stir among the ringsiders by his cleverness, and threatened to cave McKinnon at several stages by driving awful right clouts to the body.

Tommy Murphy, Who Defeated Unholz

FIGHT BY ROUNDS

ROUND ONE.

The Boer opened up with a left to the head. Murphy retaliated with a double left to head and body. They clinched, and on the break Murphy hooked with right and left. The Boer rushed, but ran into a left to the jaw. He dove in again, failing to land. Murphy got active and planted right and left to jaw, while the Boer pressed out from between his gloves in front of his face. Tommy was like a cat as far as the Boer rushed, sidestepping him or knocking down his wings. The Boer pounded the kidneys when he got his close. He rushed Murphy to the ropes, and as Tommy tried to get out of the way he spun across the ring trying to catch his balance.

ROUND TWO.

Murphy hooked a couple of steamy lefts to the head as he saw an opening, flashing them over like lightning. The Boer dashed into his foe in true goat style, trying to bore his head through Tommy's frame. They hung together and fought in the clinch and Ruddie sprung his loop the loop punch to the head. As the Boer covered up, Tommy plastered him with rights and lefts.

ROUND THREE.

Murphy stepped in with left to body. The Boer opened up and in his awkward way tried some fancy shadowing fighting. He rushed, but swung around Tommy's body, who stepped inside. The Boer contented himself with pounding the kidneys with the heel of his glove and got away with it. The Boer got within range of Tommy's right and let drive, following up with left to the pigmy's frame. The Boer rushed blindly and worked a left thrown on Tommy's ribs.

ROUND FOUR.

The Boer got in close and played a tune on Tommy's kidneys. He let fly a right swing, and it just grazed Tommy's face, falling short. Tommy hooked his left twice as Boer swung on the Boer's head, but the African ducked when he saw a heavy right swing coming. The Boer rushed, belting low, but with not half the power behind it. The blow caught Tommy flush on the jaw, and he reeled toward the ropes, with the Boer after him, and the crowd let a delirious cheer. Tommy was dazed, but hung on till the cobwebs worked out of his head, while the Boer was working overtime trying to chop him down. Murphy steadied suddenly and got set for the Boer as he went in for another rush and met him coming. The full rang before any more damage was done.

ROUND FIVE.

Murphy did not appear to be affected by his hard round, and proceeded to set the pace. He put over right and left to the head, and the Boer took a left hook. Murphy sent over a wicked right swing, which the Boer blocked. Tommy backed up against the ropes and the Boer came on. He hooked Tommy below the belt, and Murphy pulled back and the crowd howled. Foul! The referee allowed Murphy to go to his corner and have a minute's rest. Tommy will have hurt Tommy, or he was pale as chalk.

Murphy shot over his left, landing on the jaw and the blow hurt Unholz as he clinched for time. Murphy got to the body with right and left soakers, which added to the Boer's misery. He made a flying leap, getting low again, and was warned to cut it out. The Boer rushed Tommy into a corner and battled with his head, wrestled and did about everything which the rules forbid.

ROUND SIX.

Murphy started away by jabbing clean with left to the head. The Boer acted tired and forgot to land a hit. He suddenly got a lesson of life and tore in, but failed to land on his eyes or shoe. Murphy measured him and put over right and left to the head, making a cut over close to the eye, which bled freely. Murphy varied his attack, hooking with his left to the body and stabbing with the same hand. The Boer was slowing down and Murphy had him all his lead.

ROUND SEVEN.

Murphy reached the body with a snappy, ringing left hook. He made a brilliant attack with his left, which landed on the nose across the ring before him. He stabbed Tommy's eye close the furious and let tore in, landing with his left on the body. Murphy showed some speed for the first second as he waddled his shaggy head and moved around the ring as he relished the call-down Tommy unawares, but Murphy was too cute and did not take any chances.

ROUND EIGHT.

The Harlemite outmaneuvered the Boer and shot over right and left to jaw. Ruddie came back with a swing for the head which banged against Tommy's frame. Murphy slammed a left to the jaw and the Boer as he went in for another rush head, and the Boer smiled after the smack.

There was a hot exchange on the ropes, as they stood toe to toe and let fly, the Boer coming on the head, and Tommy to the clinch. Going to the limit, it was a series of rushes by the Boer and Murphy to roll over his foe by the force of his drives.

ROUND NINE.

The Boer again rushed, proceeded to rush Murphy through the ropes. They had a sizzling exchange on the barrier, slipping over numerous short-arm blows, and Murphy rounded on the jaw with right. Murphy jabbed and Ruddie fell to clinch. The Boer acted desperate and smashed Tommy against the ropes, but Murphy hit low in his rush and received a word of caution from the referee. Tommy mixed freely on the ropes and Murphy showed the best of the game with his quick action. The Boer rushed and Tommy got inside with his battery. The Boer surprised Tommy by smashing his left on his nose.

ROUND TEN.

The Boer took terrible punishing, but he had no alibi, going in with his head down. He fought Tommy when they were tied, belting him to the body and head. Murphy stood off and peeled him with his left, which set the Boer rushing again, but he did no execution. In his eagerness to get a right over he tried to smash it in the break but hit the referee a glancing blow.

ROUND ELEVEN.

The Boer's seconds urged him to go in and win decisively, and he tried to make good, but Murphy had him up and prevented him doing any harm when they were in close. The Boer pounded two wild swings and Murphy caught him rushing. He acted groggy to get Murphy to pile in, but his foeman was full of resourcefulness the New Yorker, who backed away. He peppered the Boer with cleverness, which rattled like so many pebbles on the roof of a tar paper shack he commenced to rid his rival, but this failed to make Murphy forget himself. The Boer Murphy had his corner and proceeded to lash him, but the latter was too clever and forced the Boer to back out.

ROUND TWELVE.

They shook hands and mixed at each other. The Boer was after a knockout and rushed in close, but Murphy was too quick for him. Tommy hooked hard with left, and on the break the Boer looked like a jumping-jack as he rushed for a load. The bell rang with both in the course of the fray, coming apart after one of the Boer's rushes.

FLEMING BOY IS THE FAVORITE FOR M. & M.

DETROIT, June 29.—After three months' talk concerning the merits of the contenders entered in the M. and M. $10,000 stake, the classic event came up for decision this afternoon, and so great was the interest in the outcome of the race that the fair grounds were taxed to its limit, the overflow crowd being forced to fill the centre field.

In the early betting Fleming Boy, in the stable of Charley Ewan, was selected to carry the luck of the talents' money, though Spanish Queen, Vendetta and Al Reese had a most wholesome following. The New England delegation slipped off a few tickets such on the outside chances of Bonnie Way, the C. W. Lasell entry, she being the only eleven in the selling pens, and later was dumped into the field.

The M. and M., one of the most important of the annual trotting classics, has a strong and well-balanced field. Fleming Boy, the favorite, created a sensation by winning at Peoria, two weeks ago and establishing a new record of 2:07½ for three-heat contests. The following week he was beaten at Terre Haute, but, in his defeat was undistressed by the long route and walloped home an easy winner in summary of the Terre Haute race. He reached the three-quarter pole in 1:33¾, after making a break at the quarter, 2:14¼. Vendetta and Spanish Queen both finished.

In the race at Peoria, where Amy Butler took her record of 2:05¾, Spanish Queen was separately timed in 2:06¾, Al Geers' Alcyone, 2:06¾, is also said to be a sure 2:08 trotter, and as the veteran reinsman has several M. M. victories to his credit, he must not be counted out. These four carrying the bulk of the big money of the talent in the big stake.

Al Reese, the 2:08¼ pacer, Al Kemp McCarthy is one of the veterans of the harness turf, who has been a big winner in the sulky at the winters of the M. & M., which has been a feature of the Blue Ribbon meetings for twenty years, but Sunday there may be a different story to tell.

A few other events on the day's card were responsibilities from New England. "Long Shot" Fox entered in the 2:15 pace the much-talked-about George Gano, while another entry in the same class was the Rendillo-trained gelding Gene Whitcomb. In the 2:10 trot was Music, that Artz McDonald worked in 2:07¾, before shipping his horse from Reidville; Miss Adbell, in the string of Lon McDonald, the Boston trainer and Chimo Bell, handled by Henry Titer.

On hand in the 2:00 pace, Milton S., Jr., and Arrow, but the tip was that the former would be the one selected to represent the New Hampshire reinsman.

In the 2:09 pace, three-heat contests, Ben Ayers, Cadie, Gen. Al Kemp McCarthy and Sambow, Big Thorne C., Major Dingman, May Worthy, Nanna, San Francisco, Spanish Queen and Nellie Bond.

2:12 pace, three in five, $1,000—Star King, Abbott, Cadie, Gen. Al Kemp McCarthy, Sambow, Big Thorne C., Major Dingman, May Worthy, Nanna, San Francisco, Spanish Queen and Nellie Bond.

2:20 pace, three in five, $1,000—Alcyone, Alcola, Bledsoe, Bonnie Way, Elsford, Faustaline, Fleming Boy, Thorne C., Major Dingman, May Worthy, Nanna, San Francisco, Spanish Queen and Nellie Bond.

2:12 trot, two in three, $1,000—Music (2:16¼), Bella (2:12), Del Coronado (2:09¾), Miss Adbell, Sally Simmons, 2nd (2:12¾), Bertie (2:09¼), Hesketon (2:06¾), Overhill (2:10), Miss Bella (2:12), Del Coronado (2:09¾), Miss Adbell (2:08¾), Music (2:07¾), Sally Simmons, 2nd (2:12¾), Bertie (2:09¼), Hesketon (2:06¾), Overhill (2:10).

2:20 trot, two in three, $1,000—Bessie Direct, Bessie Wax, Elsford, Faustaline, Gene Whitcomb (2:08¼), Hesketon (2:06¾), Milton S., Jr. (2:11¼), Arrow (2:09½), Shaughnan (2:08¾), Fred D. (2:14), Red Rose (2:05¾).

CARDIO AND BRODERS ARE TIED IN VOTES FOR LEAD

Cardio and Broders are now engaged in an even-keno battle for the lead in the Boston American's Automobile Contest for the most popular professional and amateur player, as the votes credited to the leaders in the two classes rive in the latest returns have placed him and Cardio with exactly 5,420 coupons each. The race from now on promises to be extremely interesting in the past week or so, there has been quite a few deciding movements in the coming week, according to reports.

Kewer of Mechanics Arts High has advanced a couple of positions in the race this week and is now figuring out of the tie with Broyle. For the professionals Hess has nothing of importance happened since the standing was last published. The score:

GANS AND DANE MATCHED.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 29.—Late last night a return match was signed up between Gans and Nelson for Sept. 5 for forty-five rounds, straight Queensberry rules. The fighters are to get 70 per cent of the gate money, of which 60 per cent goes to the winner and 40 per cent to the loser. Eddie Smith was chosen referee. Both signed for Gans and Willie Britt for Nelson.

BRITT TO MEET SUMMERS.

James Edward Britt has started his "campaign of publicity" in London by challenging everything in the world weighing 133 pounds. Johnny Summers promptly accepted and went him one better by offering to bet $1,000 on the side. The pair will meet in the near future before one of the English clubs, but "put a little bet on me" there will be no side bet as Britt has made a handsome start with what for as James is concerned.

WHITNEY IS BEATEN ON LONGWOOD COURTS

LONGWOOD TENNIS COURTS, July 29.—Play continued in the Longwood singles and the Eastern championship doubles to-day, the results narrowing down to the finals.

In the morning, matches brought on some good tennis. J. M. Bell, Jr., beat R. S. Lovering, and Ames, the Providence player, added another win by beating F. C. Inman.

The schoolboy champ, E. H. Whitney, fell before the skill of F. J. Sullivan in straight sets.

The play matches were scheduled for the afternoon, when Beals Wright met George Wrenn, and Little faced Clothier. The results of these matches put an important hinge on the final outcome.

The Results.

SINGLES.

C. M. Bull, Jr., beat R. S. Lovering, 2–6, 6–3, 6–0, 4–6, 7–5.

Wm. Shaw beat A. F. Dabney, Jr., 6–3, 6–4, 7–5.

Ames beat F. C. Inman, 6–2, 7–5, 6–2.

PAPKE TO MEET LEWIS AUG. 13

NEW YORK, July 29.—It was learned to-day that Billy Papke, the great Western middleweight fighter, and Willie Lewis, the clever local pugilist, are really going to fight. They matched last night at the Grand Central depot to engage in a twelve-round bout, before the Armory A. A. of Boston on August 13 at 133 pounds, weigh in at the ringside.

The match was clinched after a conference between Mish Murray and Billy Pierce, the manager of the club; Tom Jones, manager of Papke, and the manager of Lewis. It took but a few minutes to arrange all details for the fight. Murray made the fighters an offer which were acceptable to their managers, and the articles of agreement were signed immediately. In order to allow Murray and Pierce to take the midnight train for Boston.

FAST HORSES IN TRAINING

NEW GLASGOW, N. S., July 29.—Thar is Sweet goes from here to the Halifax track next month. It is a very select stable, made up of the former Massachusetts and Nova Scotia horses. Thar is Sweet, 4, bath by Ringon, 2:06¾, and Marion, by Peter the Great, 2:06¾. These stallions have almost completed their stud duties for the year, and will be given some careful track work.

Marion will be pointed for a record at the Halifax Fall fair. He was a very fast colt, but went wrong after showing a mile in 2:20 as a two-year-old. It is now thought he has sufficiently a splendid loss of his speed, and will be given some training big horse, with lots of energy; his dam was Starlight, 2:09¾, dam of Arion, 2:13¾), by Electioneer.

Maple Leaf, the young Ringen stallion, out of Improvidence, 2:12 (dam of Oswald, 2:02¾), by Allerton, 2:16, will be given his first introduction to track work. Actile, 2:15¾, will be kept in form for the exhibition, where he will be shown about with a bunch of his yearling colts.

LIPTON PLANS TO RACE 90-FOOTER OVER HERE

Sir Thomas Lipton has been taking a good deal recently about the America Cup and has said what he wants to do. He is still anxious for a race, and now says he will build one or two yachts and would like to arrange a race under the present rule of measurement of the New York Yacht Club and name a yacht ninety feet on the water line as the challenger. It sustains that the hitch in the last challenge was that he named a yacht seventy-five feet on the water line, and that since the race considerably has reduced the New Yacht Club as too small to race for a contest for the possession of the America's Cup.

The New York Yacht Club did rather object to racing with small yachts, but the chief objection was to the yachts being built under the rule which, in the opinion of the members of the club, were not called for by the deed of gift. The members decided that the America's Cup stood for speed over a certain water line length and that a challenge could be accepted only under terms laid down by the deed. Sir Thomas Lipton points out that there is a mutual agreement existing and that the challenged and the challenging clubs under that clause may arrange any terms that are agreeable to both. As usual, Sir Thomas is airing his opinions publicly, while the New York Yacht Club says nothing until it has to. If some British or Irish yacht will send a challenge for the cup and name the conditions which she is willing to arrange a race the New York Yacht Club will not promptly but the challenging club know what it will do.

Lipton Popular at Home.

When Sir Thomas raised here before the British racing men were among the most hearted support and suggested that it would be much better if he would build a yacht of his own and race for the home waters. This he has done. His Shamrock is a winning boat, so that he is in popular favor at home and is now regarded as a regular British racing yachtsman. The Yachting World in reference to his gentlemen agreement and America's Cup says:

"The appearance of a Shamrock flaunting a winning flag under her burgee—a sight which has been made familiar to us by the regattas of the past season—will naturally a renewal of the challenge for the America's Cup that is now held by neither surprise nor apology that this news-related subject has been brought to the front. Not in the whole history of the sport is there record of an owner going so much and spending so freely with so little to show for it as Sir Thomas Lipton. It is characteristic of the man that he opened his connection with the sport with an onslaught on the then most fashionably popular class. Three years ago Sir Thomas Lipton, it is characteristic of the man that he opened his connection with the sport with an onslaught on the then most fashionably popular class. Three years ago Sir Thomas Lipton, it is characteristic of the man that he opened his connection with the sport with an onslaught on the then most fashionably popular class.

"The first expedition in search of the America's cup was made with a challenger which proved unfortunately to be but ill-founded. With that confidence born of success, also a fine enthusiasm which carried him over that disappointment, stood by him through two more and finally, when the cup contest was shut down by pressure of circumstance and the too zealous care of the guardians of the trophy, launched him into a course of our British racing. Till this year Sir Thomas had but a single prize to put against all his outlay of time and money and energy in the sport, and now that the new Shamrock has made a handsome start with what for as James is concerned,

How Many Rhymes Can You Find for Kern?

Finding Rhymes Seems to Amuse Our Readers

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

Once we asked BOSTON AMERICAN readers to find rhymes for certain words to which no rhymes exist in our language. To our great surprise they found rhymes by the dozen and by the hundreds—that is to say, they thought they found rhymes. The rhymes that they found didn't really rhyme.

Here is an easier undertaking for the readers—find the rhyme for Kern. You may not know, by the way, that that is the name of the Democratic candidate for the Vice-Presidency. No wonder you don't know it. A machine party that picks up somebody you never heard of and offers him to you as "the people's choice" is slightly ridiculous.

However, as Kern is nominated, and as long as campaign songs must be sung, somebody has got to find rhymes for Kern.

How many can you find?

Here is a sample, rather amusing, from the Gazette, of Emporia, Kansas:

> Now let the watchfires gaily burn, a tribute to the statesman Kern, and let the rockets soar and whirl (although we don't know who he is); Now let the Kern Club proudly march, bring forth the large triumphal arch; and while the legions march in line, their banners flynig, silken, fine, they'll sound the slogan: "Voter, turn, and vote for What'd ye call him Kern?" Oh, here's a name to stir the blood, and make of it a seething flood! The future's safe for every man with Kerns (and raisins) in the van!

Fashion Often Used to Pick Up Microbes

Fashion Now Drops Them. We Claim No Credit

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

Mr. John Eggleston writes from the Mansion House, Greenfield, Mass., enclosing a card which he distributes, bearing a quotation from our editorial column which reads as follows:

READ AND REFLECT

ALL over New York, and we presume all over the world, women of every kind, from the idle lilies to the poor little factory girls, are dragging their dresses in the filth of the street, taking disease to their homes and jeopardizing the health of children as well as their own health.

A writer in a reliable medical paper makes this important statement: "From one of these dresses dragged over the street a few times I was able to demonstrate the presence of seventeen tubercle bacilli on an inch microscopic slide, on which a little of the dirt off her dress was dusted."

Is there not a warning in that, O train-dragging Venus? Why, in the name of common sense, will women persist in acting like savages merely for the sake of fashion? They protest, justly and vigorously, against the abominable American habit of spitting; they are outraged at the lack of respect which it shows for American womanhood, but they prance around the street sweeping up all the filth and all the disease germs they can find, and take them home to their families. For Heaven's sake, do be sensible, ladies, if you possibly can, at least about this one thing! Tramp around with your neat, pretty feet in sight, and leave on the streets their filth. Don't, don't, DON'T be microbe collectors.

Mr. Eggleston writes us:

> Dear Sir—It is several years since you wrote the enclosed editorial, "Read and Reflect," and as I notice almost every woman today heeding the suggestion you made at that time I cannot help but thinking it was yourself who was largely responsible for the complete overthrow of the abominable habit to which your editorial refers, and which at that time was almost universal. Yourself as a fearless, caustic and truthful writer, and your newspapers, with their marvellous circulation, have done more to educate the American people by opening avenues of thought and discussion among them upon matters of vital interest to their welfare and happiness than any methods I know of. Sincerely, etc.
> JOHN EGGLESTON.

We are sorry we can't accept and greedily swallow Mr. Eggleston's polite compliments. It takes more than one editor, more than one newspaper, more than one thousand years, to make a woman change a fashion, UNLESS SHE GETS TIRED OF THE FASHION.

Women picked up microbes with long skirts because that was the fashion. And now they dance along showing their feet below short skirts, BECAUSE THAT IS THE FASHION.

Woman, with all her fashions, squeezings, flouncings, dragging skirts, crazy hats, wild colors, everlasting rush and bustle, is striving for SOMETHING. Doubtless even in her fashions she reveals Nature's desperate effort to make her even better than she is. Man can stand on the side line and criticise or cheer, but can't do very much to change.

Those Who Laugh at a Drunken Man

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

How often have you seen a drunken man stagger along the street!

His clothes are soiled from falling, his face is bruised, his eyes are dull. Sometimes he curses the boys that tease him. Sometimes he tries to smile, in a drunken effort to placate pitiless, childish cruelty.

His body, worn out, can stand no more, and he mumbles that he is GOING HOME.

The children persecute him, throw stones at him, laugh at him, running ahead of him.

GROWN MEN AND WOMEN, TOO, OFTEN LAUGH WITH THE CHILDREN, nudge each other, and actually find humor in the sight of a human being sunk below the lowest animal.

The sight of a drunken man going home should make every other man and woman sad and sympathetic, and, horrible as the sight is, it should be useful by inspiring in those who see it a determination to avoid and to help others avoid that man's fate.

That reeling drunkard is GOING HOME.

He is going home to children who are afraid of him, to a wife whose life he has made miserable.

He is going home—taking with him the worst curse in the world—to suffer bitter remorse himself after having inflicted suffering on those whom he should protect.

AND AS HE GOES HOME MEN AND WOMEN, KNOWING WHAT THE HOME-COMING MEANS, LAUGH AT HIM AND ENJOY THE SIGHT.

In the old days in the arena it occasionally happened that brothers were set to fight each other. When they refused to fight they were forced to it by red-hot irons applied to their backs.

We have progressed beyond the moral condition of human beings guilty of such brutality as that. But we cannot call ourselves civilised while our imaginations and sympathies are so dull that the reeling drunkard is thought an amusing spectacle.

The above editorial is selected from one hundred and six gathered together in book form under the title "Editorials From the Hearst Newspapers." This book will be sent postpaid upon receipt of one dollar, by the Albertson Publishing Company, P. O. box 20, New York City.

How Women Win Men

If They Have Charm and Attractiveness They Need No Trumpet to Announce the Fact

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

THERE is no more delicate subject for discussion among young women than the subject of men.

You can form a very correct impression of a girl's mind, of her temperament, of her refinement or the lack of it, of her good sense or its absence, and of her tact and taste, by the manner in which she talks of her men acquaintances with companions of her own sex.

The girl who is continually saying, "I hate men; I shall never marry; I could be perfectly happy if I never saw a man again," is very liable to take the first suitor who offers himself, and to make a poor marriage through her secret fear of becoming an old maid.

It is this fear, hidden in her "subjective mind," which causes her to talk in this foolish manner.

The girl who talks of nothing but "boys" and "men" and "fellows," and who is incapable of finding interest or pleasure in any topic which does not include the flirtations of the sexes, either elopes with an undesirable suitor when very young, or else delays marriage until late in life through her too rapid changes of admirers.

Desirable men, seeking life partners, are given to being wary of girls who talk too much about other men. A man prefers to hold the centre of the stage and to feel that he is able to drive thoughts of other men away from the mind of the woman whose society he seeks.

The girl who boasts of her numerous admirers, and who tells of their infatuation for her, is unconsciously making men immune to her fascinations. There is no phase of feminine weakness and folly more pronounced than this.

Need No Trumpet

No attractive girl or woman need trumpet forth her own charms. They will speak for themselves. If she is pleasing to the masculine sex, and if she is admired, her audience will know the fact.

If men speak truthful compliments to her face, they will resent them to others when her name is mentioned. It will not be necessary for her to tell even her best friend how much a man admires her.

The wise girl will be absolutely silent in such matters. She will answer all inquiries and all teasing of her companions regarding the attitude of an admirer with the noncommittal statement: "He is a good friend, I hope; I like him, and find his companionship agreeable."

Not until a man has declared himself an open suitor for a woman's hand in marriage, and she has decided in his favor, can she with any delicacy of refinement intimate to any one besides her parents that he is more than a friend. Nor can she be sure of the matter until he has so declared himself, and her womanly pride requires silence.

When a man's suit is rejected he should rejoice at his escape if she makes the fact known to her friends. The woman who can jeer or boast in a matter of this kind is void of one important quality which is needful in a good wife, viz. Kindness and consideraton for the feelings of others.

The less a really attractive woman talks of her own powers to be attractive, and of her conquests, and the compliments she receives, the greater grow those powers and the larger her list of followers.

Defeats Her Own Ends

A very handsome young widow, whose beauty had made her a belle since her debut, disgusted a party of men and women at the house of a friend, where all were being entertained, by continual boastful references to her life of conquest. Every man fled from a tete-a-tete with her, and all of the other women breathed a sigh of relief when she left the room.

In delightful contrast, an acknowledged beauty, visiting at the same house a short time afterward, insisted on talking about other women's charms and power of fascination, and passed lightly over any reference to her own evident prowess. As a consequence, she left every man and woman in the place her devoted champion.

Of all subjects in the world, this subject of the attraction of the sexes is the one needing the most delicacy and tact. Yet of all subjects it is the one most carelessly, coarsely or lightly handled by the average young woman of the day.

Mothers rarely instruct their daughters in delicacy and consideration for the feelings of their admirers when talking of them. A large percentage of cultured women encourage their daughters to boast of their achievements in the battlefield of Cupid.

Good breeding and Christianity ought to reveal themselves in these matters, as well as in church attendance and deeds of charity.

Remember the Golden Rule when talking of other women's sons or brothers.
